Mourn With the Babe.
Mr. A. E. Smith Consents.
Fattening Germs.
Wall Street Smiles.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

"BABE" RUTH, baseball player whose salary has been cut ten thousand dollars a year, can sympathize with the English lady. Told that the war made it impossible to supply her pets dog biscuit, she remarked:

"This war has ceased to be a joke."

"Babe" Ruth probably thinks our financial situation has ceased to be a joke.

On the other hand, if he accepts the cut, he will get $70,000 a year in place of $80,000, with a long rest in winter, and will probably decide that things might be worse.

THE POLITICAL NEWS is the statement that Gov. Alfred E. Smith "would not object to the use of his name as a candidate for the presidency on the Democratic ticket in state primaries."

Whether or not Gov. Smith is to be nominated, the announcement puts a new complexion on the 1932 fight. The individual that might be held responsible for keeping Mr. Smith from the nomination could not get a two-thirds vote in the convention, or a very big popular vote afterwards.

DR. RENTSCHLER, of the Westinghouse laboratories, enumerates interesting scientific achievements of 1932. Discovering the last of the missing elements, we now possess all the ninety-odd substances of which everything in the universe is composed. Later we may discover that the ninety-odd are variations of only one substance, or form of motion.

THE PRODUCTION of 10,000 degrees of heat Fahrenheit with a great burning glass shows that the story about Archimedes arranging to burn enemy ships in the harbor with a glass concentrating the sun's rays might be true, although it probably is not.

Producing an electric current of 18,000,000 volts that may help to break down the atom interests scientists.

What interests ordinary human beings most is the treating of disease germs with special diets.

By feeding them up they are made fat and can be seen under the microscope. By cutting down their food supply they become invisible, which seems to be the ambition of some of our young ladies.

WALL STREET has been smiling for several days in succession. Stocks continued to lift their drooping heads yesterday, railroad stocks leading.

New York Central, that sold above $250 two years ago, has crawled up from the low mark of $24 a share to $33. Somebody bought more than sixty-nine thousand shares yesterday.

Government bonds were strong, thanks to Secretary Mellon's firm stand on the matter of preserving national credit.

SECRETARY MELLON hears himself accused in Congress of being interested in American business on a big scale. Somebody wants to impeach him because, before he took office, he was able to accumulate a few hundred millions of dollars.

Whom would they have as Secretary of the Treasury. Somebody that can prove that he has always been unable to make a living?

BEFORE PRESIDENT HARDING was inaugurated, he told this writer at St. Augustine, in Florida:

"I am going to nominate the second richest man in the world for Secretary of the Treasury. What do you think the public will say to that?"

This writer, who didn't know who the second richest man in the world was, or the first richest man either, expressed the opinion that the people would be glad to have the national finances in the hands of somebody acquainted with finances.

FROM THE MOSQUE of El Aksa, in Jerusalem, where it had reposed for many centuries, there has been stolen an ancient, written volume of the Koran, valued at $100,000.

When he was on earth, thirteen hundred years ago, Mohammed would have attended to such a matter by performing the necessary miracle. He did that often and sent for angels, ten times as big as any of our skyscrapers.

The Jerusalem mosque whence the Koran volume was stolen was within forty years as old as the Kaaba Shrine, in Mecca, that every good Mohammedan must visit. The mosque's importance is proved by the fact that Allah transported Mohammed from Mecca to Jerusalem in one single night.

It would surprise the prophet, Allah also, to know that any good flier can make the journey now in less time.

ANYONE WITH MONEY looking for an example to follow might consider this one.

Felix M. Warburg, of New York, has four sons. Yesterday their father was 67 years old. The sons might have given him a pair of slippers or a new automobile. Instead, they chose to pay on his birthday all the expenses for that day of the ninety-one Jewish charities in New York.

To run these charities cost eleven dollars a minute. They contributed eleven dollars, multiplied by sixty, multiplied by twenty-four.

RUM CHASER RAMMED IN FOG

Freighter Hits Coast Guard Craft; Radios for Help In Towing Into Port

BULLETIN.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The Mackay Radio Corporation received a message at 2:02 p. m. saying the freighter Lemuel Burrows, en route to New London with the stricken destroyer Herndon in tow, had lost the tow and was in a dense fog.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.) — Slipping through a dark fog on the awtch for rum runners, the Coast Guard destroyer Herndon, carrying 85 men and eight officers, was smashed by a freighter half way between Montauk Point and Block Island today.

After a period of confusion and dismay, during which broadcasting was suspended and conflicting messages flashed through the fog, the freighter, Lemuel Burrows, reported she was towing the crippled destroyer to New London, but she was still sending out calls for help.

COMMANDER WORRIED

Capt. Randolph Ridgely, commander of the New York Coast Guard division, expressed apprehension over the safety of the vessel. He said:

"She is slightly built, and if she were hit by a freighter the chances are she might be pretty badly smashed up."

Coast Guard headquarters here began directing rescue operations. Officials said several of their vessels were in the approximate vicinity, an dthat the nearest were rushing to the scene.

Messages received at the Coast Guard headquarters gave only scant details of the accident. At first the skipper of the Lemuel Burrows radioed that his ship had "rammed some vessel" and that boats were being lowered. Then he said he believed it was a Coast Guard craft.

FREIGHTER CALLS FOR HELP

One of the messages intercepted here said the Burrows "needs assistance," but whether this meant that she was badly damaged was not immediately determined.

The Lemuel Burrows left Boston for Norfolk yesterday. It ordinarily carries a crew of 38.

Although the fog was so thick that rescue vessels speeding to the scene could see only a few yards ahead, officials here found comfort in the condition of the sea. It was believed to be smooth at the place of the collision, with little wind blowing.

RADIO STATIONS SILENCED

All radio broadcasting was suspended to leave the air clear in connection with rescue efforts.

Coast Guardsmen here said the Herndon was hit on the port side at the forward fire room and that this would probably mean a loss of life if the impact was heavy enough.

She had water-tight compartments which, it was believed, stood her in good stead after the blow which she received from the freighter.

LIEUT. REBECCA FUNK

THUGS ROB GIRL SALVATIONIST

North Side police today were searching for two bandits who robbed Lieut. Rebecca Funk, 23, of $14 as she dined alone in her home in the Salvation Army mission, at 1900 Chateau street, last night.

The men entered the place after climbing over an adjoining roof. Throwing a cloth over her head, one bandit held her while his confederate ransacked the building.

The lieutenant said:

"I didn't get to see the men. After they took the blindfold off, I was too scared to look."

Schooley's Aide Given 1-3 Years

Charles Solomon, former assistant cashier of the City Treasurer's office, who last April admitted embezzling $3,000 of city funds, today was sentenced to serve one to three years in the Western Penitentiary by Judge James H. Gray.

Postponement in pronouncing sentence had been granted to allow Solomon an opportunity to make restitution, but he told the court today that he had been able to restore only $1,000.

Former City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley and his investigator, Arthur Burgoyne, who have since been indicted themselves, were grand jury witnesses against Solomon.

The defendant was accused of taking tax payments and giving forged receipts.

SNOW ON WAY TO END WINTER 'HEAT WAVE'

Mercury to Drop 35 Degrees, Forecaster Says, After Setting New Record Here

The January "springtime," with budding flowers and buzzing bees, was nearing an end today, as snow flurries were sweeping toward this district, bringing a predicted temperature drop of some 35 degrees.

From yesterday's high mark of 70, which shattered all records for that date, and 66, another record, at 8 o'clock this morning the mercury is scheduled to begin skidding late today until it hits 30 to 35 by tomorrow morning.

Light snow will supplant the rain which began last night and continued today. Clearing skies and colder weather is listed for tomorrow.

WIND AND RAIN

Thunder showers and high wind marked the passing of the mid-winter "summer" in the lower Ohio Valley, the Weather Bureau reported.

Damage to flowers coaxed into new life by the recent warmth is feared. Most perennials, including poppies, lilies, bergamot, columbine, iris, are showing green shoots which will likely be doomed by sub-freezing temperatures.

Honey bees were reported working at several points in the county yesterday, adding to the signs of the unusual mildness.

NEW HEAT MARKS

Associated Press.

It was a warm day throughout Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and several new heat records were established. Probably the warmest spot in either state was Fairmont, W. Va., where the mercury climbed to 78 degrees, which Government Forecaster J. C. Robinson said was a new record for January 14.

Parkersburg, W. Va., with 73 degrees, had a new record set for the 43 years of the Parkersburg Weather Bureau.

Franklin, Pa., was the leader in the northern section of Pennsylvania. A temperature of 70 degrees was the highest there on January 14 in 50 years recording.

FIELDS PLOWED

Farmers at Franklin plowed in the fields and reports of robins were so numerous that they failed to arouse more than passing interest.

William Corder, a Philippi (W. Va.) farmer, reported a swarm of young bees left a hive at his farm. The Philippi temperature was 72 degrees.

At Uniontown a baseball game was played with the mercury at 73 degrees. It was between a pair of pickup teams with such wintry names as "The Blizzards" and "The Snowstorms."

Flowers in bloom were reported from many different sections of both states. And mowing lawns that should be covered with snow was a common practice.

Snow in Los Angeles As East Swelters

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—For the first time in years snow fell here today.

Fletcher Asks Aid In Seeking Post

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania congressional delegation was asked today by Henry P. Fletcher, former chairman of the Tariff Commission, to support him for appointment as ambassador to Great Britian.

A majority of the Pennsylvania delegation have said they would support Fletcher for the appointment unless Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, should be a candidate. Reed has indicated he will not seek the position.

Ohio Police Hunt Killer From Plane

WARREN, O., Jan. 15.—(INS.)—Aerial search for Arch F. Knisely, 43, Warren clubman and wife murderer, was resorted to by police today as the theory was advanced that Knisely may be hiding in a wooded section near here.

Patrolman John Drinco, a licensed pilot, made a brief survey from the air and was to conduct an extensive flight later today.

Swearingen May Resign Common Pleas Bench

The resignation of Judge J. M. Swearingen, of Common Pleas Court, was reported to be under consideration today. Judge Swearingen, 78, a judge for 25 years, is said to have failed in health recently.

Should the reported resignation be presented, a fight for the position is indicated. There was a big array of candidates for the seven judicial positions filled at the last election, and the various political leaders are much interested in the filling of judicial vacancies. The biggest contest, however, is expected to be waged by the adherents of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern and State Senator James J. Coyne, both friends of Gov. Pinchot, but representing opposite factions.

Judge Swearingen was appointed to the bench in April, 1907, when court No. 4 was created. He was made president judge and retained that position until the consolidation of the four courts in 1912.

He was elected for the full term of 10 years in 1907, and again in 1917 and 1927.

He is a graduate of Washington and Jefferson College, class of '72.

CALL NEW BANK WITNESSES

Four new witnesses were called today to testify before Special Deputy Secretary of Banking George F. Taylor, Jr., next Wednesday, as to their dealings with Herman Friedman, second mortgage dealer and reputed financier of politicians and the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company.

Among them were D. Kellerman, produce merchant, and M. M. Parrish, contractor, who, with Friedman, have been named as principal debtors of the bank and whose deals with the bank have been cited as evidence of its "childish mismanagement."

Others are Nathan Rosenberg and James H. West.

SOCIETY WOMEN DEFEND 'HONOR SLAYING'

Mrs. Stotesbury Justifies Killing, Says Any Mother Would Have Done Same

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—Society leaders of the nation today rose in defense of Mrs. Granville Fortescue, held in Hawaii with her son-in-law and two naval enlisted men in connection with the "honor slaying" of a native charged with attacking her daughter.

They were headed by Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, of Philadelphia, who wrote the accused matron:

"I would have done the same thing had I been in your place—and so would any good mother."

OTHERS EXPRESS APPROVAL

Others who have cabled or written their support to Mrs. Fortescue, it was revealed today, include Katherine McCook Knox, daughter-in-law of the late Philander C. Knox, Pennsylvania Senator and Secretary of State; Mrs. Breckenridge Long, of Baltimore, widow of the Democratic Secretary of State under Woodrow Wilson; Mrs. Cornelius Bliss, of New York; Mrs. Edward B. McLean, wife of the Washington publisher, and May Wilson Preston, New York illustrator.

All Philadelphia today was discussing Mrs. Stotesbury's approval of maternal vengeance.

LONG FRIENDSHIP RECALLED

Surprised at the furore she has aroused, the Philadelphia dowager today backed up her cable with a further defense of Mrs. Fortescue.

Lifelong friendship prompted her to send the message of admiration and encouragement, said Mrs. Stotesbury at he, home, Whitemarsh Hall. She first knew Mrs. Fortescue when the latter was a young society girl in Washington, and she chaperoned many of the parties the debutante attended. She said:

"I am terrifically shocked by this whole thing.

"All their lives may be ruined by this terrible thing and now is the time for Mrs. Fortescue's friends to rally to her support.

"Certainly it would be a mother's instinct to avenge her daughter's honor. We should realize the terrific strain under which Gracie Fortescue must have labored. She probably would have gone insane thinking of the dishonor."

Senate to Investigate Hawaiian Killing

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The Senate Territories Committee will begin tomorrow an investigation of conditions in Hawaii.

Chairman Bingham announced the decision to the Senate today. He has called the Secretaries of the Navy and War, the Attorney General, Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, and Victor Houston, Hawaiian delegate, as the first witnesses.

From the testimony, the committee will determine whether it will be necessary to send a senatorial delegation to Hawaii or await the outcome of the separate Justice Department inquiry.

Secretary Wilbur will appear tomorrow before the House committee investigating the Hawaiian situation.

Charles M. Oelrichs, Society Leader, Dies

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Charles M. Oelrichs, 73, prominent for many years in the Newport society colony, died today after two months of illness. Gandhi's Wife Given Six Weeks in Jail

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mohandas K. Gandhi, who is almost as great an idol among India's unlettered multitude as the Mahatma himself, was sentenced at Surat today to serve six weeks in prison for urging the villagers to adopt her husband's principles of boycott and civil disobedience.

AL SMITH'S SON HELD IN DEATH

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith's youngest son, Walter, a college student, was arrested on a technical charge of homicide today in connection with a street accident which police said was entirely unavoidable.

Harry Wallace, a 55-year-old resident of the Bowery, was killed when, police said, he walked in front of an automobile young Smith was driving. Smith drove to a hospital, where Wallace was pronounced dead. The technical charge was made as a matter of police routine, police announcing that no culpability attached to Smith, who was released in $1,000 bail.

Hearing was set for a week from today. Young Smith was represented by his brother, Alfred E. Smith, Jr., an attorney.

Motorman Freed In Moran Death

A coroner's jury today exonerated John Gill, motorman, whose street car collided with an auto in which Patrick (Hap) Moran, former city detective, was riding in California avenue January 2. Moran died later.

Connection Between Oil Concession and Granting Of Credit Disclaimed

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The Senate Finance committee heard today a message from President Olaya to the Congress of Colombia, June 9, 1931, quoting officials of J. P. Morgan & Co. as refusing loans until the Barco concession and other oil disputes were settled.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—An emphatic denial that Andrew Mellon had any connection with a loan to Colombia was put before a House committee today in his behalf.

It was voiced by Alexander H. Gregg in replying for the Secretary to the impeachment proceedings brought by Representative Patman, of Texas. Gregg read to the Judiciary Committee a statement dictated by Mellon.

MELLON DEFENDED

He defended the treasury official against all Patman's charges, including assertions Mr. Mellon as a stockholder controlled many corporations; that he secured large tax rebates for firms in which he was interested, and that he was connected with the liquor business.

One of Patman's charges had sought to link Mellon with influencing American bankers to make the loan. The loan went forward to Colombia 10 days after the government of that country had granted a valuable oil concession to the Mellon-controlled Gulf Oil Coporation.

The State Department has admitted that it helped influence the bankers to make the loan, but has denied there was any connection between the loan and the granting of the concession.

LETTERS REFUSED

Francis White, assistant Secretary of state, refused again today to turn over to the Senate Finance Committee letters exchanged between the department and its Colombian legation.

Regarding the Barco oil concession given to the Gulf Oil firm by Colombia, Gregg read a state-

All-Day Prayer Meeting Asks Aid for Jobless

Twenty-four hours of prayer for unemployment relief and a revival of old-time religion ended today in the Christ Reformed Church at Hamilton and North Lang avenues, Homewood.

During the meeting a telegram, signed by 12 clergymen, was dispatched to President Hoover, asking him to call for a similar meeting in all of the country's churches.

More than 180 worshipers were gathered in the church as late as last midnight, the meeting having begun at 9 a. m. yesterday. When the last prayer was said, and the last hymn sung today, 22 women and three men remained. They had remained through the night.

Among those who remained for the 24 hours was 5-year-old Oliver Manice, Jr., of Verona, accompanied by his mother. He sang several hymns for the audience.

Evangelist Luther A. Horn, assisted by four clergymen, led the worshippers.

ANTHRACITE LEADERS HELD FOES OF POWER RATE CUTS

PLAN TO HAMPER STATE LEAGUE CHARGED

Hazelton Attorney Jeered As Boroughs of State Move to Organize Battle

Anthracite district leaders who favor high electric rates because they sell coal to power companies were charged today with attempting to hamper Gov. Pinchot's conference of municipal representatives which met yesterday to plan means of fighting excessive utility charges.

Returning delegates to the conference explaining disturbances which featured the meeting said the trouble was caused by the injection by the anthracite district representatives of a selfish defense of high rates.

A. B. Davidson, president of the Tarentum Borough Council and chairman of the meeting held yesterday in Harrisburg declared Bigelow and his group revealed opposition even before the session opened. While all borough and township representatives from throughout the state registered the anthracite district delegation refused to participate in this formality.

ARGUES FOR COAL

Bigelow, a solicitor for several municipalities in the Hazelton district, stressed the use of anthracite coal as a defense for utility companies. Davidson condemning Bigelow's talk said:

"This exponent of utility firms declared that the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company used one and a half million tons of anthracite coal last year. The impression appeared that he upheld the benefit the coal industry gained through utility operations. At no point did he justify the excessive rates."

Despite the bitterness developed when Bigelow, amid catcalls and jeers, attempted to uphold public utility companies the meeting resulted in the appointment of a special committee to prepare plans for the formation of a statewide organization, the Pennsylvania Fair Rate League.

DECIDE ON PLEA

The committee will shortly decide whether the Public Service Commission will be requested to reconsider adoption of the Woodruff measure stipulating $4.10 as the uniform rate for 100 kilowatt hours per month for domestic consumers.

C. J. Dickson Berwick, president of the Pennsylvania Fair Rate League, who moved the appointment of the investigating committee, was named its chairman. Pittsburgh district members named were S. S. Baldridge, Apollo; M. B. Klinesmith, Grove City; W. J. Landis, Monongahela; J. H. Rockenstein, Freedom, and the Rev. Father James R. Cox, of Pittsburgh.

So boisterous became the meeting on several occasions that Charles W. Studenmaier, Schuylkill County legislator and sponsor of fair rate measures, rose to reproach the borough representatives for "barroom tactics" which he charged, had resulted in the "sorry spectacle" of denying the right of free speech to a speaker who pleaded the cause of the utilities.

WELCOME BY PINCHOT

Formation of the committee followed a welcoming address by Gov. Pinchot, who outlined an 11-point program for the regulation of public utilities in the state. The program of the executive who assured the representatives of his "enthusiastic co-operation," is as follows:

1—Prohibiting issuance of securities by utilities without approval of the Public Service Commission.

2—Prohibiting utilities from placing excess earnings in reserve funds.

3—Providing for condemnation and operation of utilities by municipalities.

4—Limiting utility charters to 50 years.

5—Giving jurisdiction over utility holding companies to the Public Service Commission.

6—Requiring commission approval of increased rates before rate may become effective.

7—Permitting the commission to make reparations where rates are found to be unreasonable and unjust.

8—Elimination of ready-to-serve charges.

9—Requiring utilities to make replacements from reserve funds.

10—Lowering rates for rural classifications.

11—Elimination of commission approval of municipal contracts with utilities.

Gov. Pinchot came in for a share of criticism that crackled continuously while the meeting was in progress. L. W. Hagmaier, state representative and burgess of Aspinwall, charged the utility code bill in the 1931 session had been killed as a result of the Governor's insistence on a "hire and fire" clause which would have given the executive absolute power over a fair rate board.

TRADERS FIGHT UTILITY RATES

Joining the state-wide fight of organizations attacking excessive public utility rates, the Duquesne Heights Board of Trade today was seeking support of trade groups and civic organizations in the city.

A special committee headed by T. W. Hopson and including William Potter, Charles Schuer and W. H. McVay is arranging a meeting of organizations towards forming a permanent city-wide group. A definite program will be arranged to protest existing rates, Hopson declared. That the group might join the Western Pennsylvania Fair Rate Association is a possibility to be considered, he added.

WAGNER URGES 2 BILLION LOAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Expansion of the federal public works program by $2,000,000,000 to be financed by a long-term bond issue was proposed today by Senator Wagner.

Describing the administration's unemployment relief program as inadequate, the New York Democrat sought Senate approval of his resolution calling on the government for estimates for an extended public buildings emergency program.

Wagner said such an issue would constitute a helpful "mild form of credit inflation" and call forth from hiding a good proportion of the hoarded money.

New Immigration Bill Given House

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—A selective system of immigration was proposed today by Representative Cable (Rep.), Ohio, as the chief item on a program to strengthen the immigration laws.

GERMANY RAPS DEBT 'LEAK'

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The German government has formally protested to the British foreign office because of the "leak" by which the world was informed last Saturday that Chancellor Bruening had told foreign diplomats Germany could no longer pay any reparations whatsoever.

In making his statement to Sir Horace Rumbold, British ambassador at Berlin, Chancellor Bruening had no intention that his views would be made known publicly before the Lausanne reparation conference to open the latter part of January. He intended at that time to make a declaration of the Reich's position, but feels that premature publication may have injured Germany's cause.

The whole affair has widened the rift between the British and French governments on the reparations question and it appeared unlikely today that anything of importance will be accomplished at Lausanne.

Finance Exchange Arranges Banquet

Final arrangements for the banquet of the Pittsburgh Exchange of Personal Finance Companies were made at the regular monthly meeting in the Fort Pitt Hotel last night. SMITH BECOMES DEMOCRATIC ENIGMA

Political Banquet Speakers Further Muddle Puzzling Presidential Prospects

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The gale of Democratic oratory which swept the nation last night at upwards of a hundred "victory dinners" did little to clarify the muddy waters surrounding the presidential nomination.

If anything, the Democratic gatherings only serve to deepen the uncertainty and to make the enigmatical Alfred E. Smith more of a question mark than before.

Summarized, the dinners had these results:

1—At Boston, Ex-Gov. Smith remained silent in the face of an open prediction that his party would "draft" him in the forthcoming presidential campaign.

2—At New York, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt assailed the Republican national leadership, called for a new deal in taxation, but remained eloquently silent on the question of his own candidacy.

3—At Washington, the potential candidacy of Speaker "Jack" Garner, of Texas, took on alleged significance as capital Democrats cheered his name and his record of leadership in the Seventy-second Congress.

4—At Chicago, Democrats were warned by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee, that the only thing which can defeat them in 1932 is "overconfidence."

5—At Columbus, O., Senator Robert J. Bulkley, figured by some as a "dark horse" candidate for the presidency, made a ringing appeal to his party to solve the prohibition question and to take a firm stand against the internationalism that contemplates further cancellation of Europe's debts.

6—At Richmond, a boom was started for ex-Gov. Harry F. Byrd. The Virginia House of Delegates and the State Senate unanimously adopted a resolution indorsing his candidacy.

BURKE ASSISTS HOOVER DRIVE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—James Francis Burke, general counsel of the Republican National Committee, conferred with Republican leaders today on methods of entering Presidents Hoover's name in various state primaries.

The Pittsburgher said that in Pennsylvania certain Republican leaders would enter the President's name, but declined to say who they were.

There are between 26 and 30 different ways in which a candidate for the presidential nomination has to file in different states, Postmaster General Brown yesterday announced Mr. Hoover's candidacy for renomination.

Pittsburghers Named Delegates-at-Large

HARRISBURG, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—Three Pittsburghers, Mrs. Anna Felix, Mrs. Carroll Miller as delegates, and Charles A. Jones as alternate, were included in a list of delegates-at-large to the National Democratic Convention, submitted by the State Democratic Committee today. The committee avoided reference to any individual presidential candidate.

REED TO SPEED JOBLESS BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Prompt consideration of a resolution authorizing the Secretary of War to make available Army equipment in caring for the homeless unemployed was promised today in the Senate by Chairman David A. Reed, of the Military Affairs Committee.

Senator Thomas (Dem.), Oklahoma, offered the resolution, which, he said, was necessary to "knock down" certain legal obstacles now preventing Secretary Hurley from giving all the relief he desired.

Thomas said Hurley had been "very helpful" in responding to an appeal for Army tents, cots and blankets in Oklahoma City, but added the Secretary of War was hampered by legal restrictions.

Behind him in the room of his friend, Harry R. Balfe, were Irma Hunter, 26, the girl who was to have been his bride last week, and Balfe. Catillaz and Miss Hunter had come there for a drink, after an evening at a night club.

3 LEAD IN RACE FOR HIGH COURT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—Choice of a successor to Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes on the United States Supreme Court bench appeared today to have narrowed down to three men—Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana; Chief Justice Arthur P. Rugg, of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court, and Judge William S. Kenyon, of Iowa, a member of the Wickersham Commission and now on the United States Circuit Court.

Rugg and Kenyon are Republicans. Walsh is a Democrat. If a Democrat is named, the choice probably will fall on Senator Walsh. He has received strong backing not only from his own party leaders, but from the Republican leadership of the Senate as well.

President Hoover was represented today as not having decided whether to name a Republican or Democrat, but an appointment is expected this week.

Declares Democrats Have 'Good Chance' Unless They 'Stagger Over Rum Bottle'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Democrats were advised today by F. Scott McBride, Anti-Saloon League superintendent, that if they would "avoid staggering over a whisky bottle and will nominate an outstanding, high-class constitutionalist, they will have a good chance to win" the 1932 election.

In his report before the board of directors of the league, he called upon the organization to "wake up and fight" during the coming 10 months. The report said:

"We might as well face the fact that there will be no landslide in 1932 in favor of prohibition as there was in 1928."

McBride said no previous results would make secure prohibition at the election of 1932, 1934 and 1936.

The outcome of the next election as to prohibition "will be greatly influenced by the economic outcome within the next 10 months," McBride said.

He told the board congressional tests so far had been mostly on matters of enforcement rather than prohibition. He warned "even a majority of 221 in both houses of Congress does not mean absolute security."

McBride advised the league directors to be omni-partisan in attitude and "not commit support for any candidate at the election until after both conventions have adjourned." He added the hope each of the leading parties would nominate dry candidates and adopt platforms favorable to enforcement.

He urged a vigorous fight against resubmitting the prohibition question to the states.

Meanwhile, house forces opposed to prohibition decided to unite behind a proposal to alter the Eighteenth amendment so that control over liquor would be returned to the States with the Federal Government strictly supervising interstate shipments.

Pitt Students Accused Of 'Scalping' Tickets

Eight co-eds and 100 male students at Pitt were in angry moods today, their tickets to Pitt basketball games having been confiscated by university authorities for "scalping."

The alleged scalping occurred at the Pitt-Duquesne basketball game Tuesday, when tickets were at a premium. Scalpers went so far as to invade State Hall on the campus and buy from students for 50 cents tickets they later sold to the public for $2.50.

New Hearst Radio Station Dedicated in New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(Universal.)—New York gave a rousing welcome to its new radio station WINS last night as a formal salute to the city's first newspaper radio station was broadcast by an aggregation of stars. The station was formally dedicated by Joseph V. Connolly, president of Universal Service, International News Service, King Features Syndicate and of American Radio News Corporation.

WINS broadcasts on the 1,180 kilocycle frequency formerly used by WGBS, which passed out of existence yesterday. It is being operated by American Radio News Corporation for the Hearst enterprises.

Electrically and mechanically the new station is the last word in radio engineering. WINS is using a new Western Electric transmitter of ultra-modern design. New studios of the station yet to be completed in its own building at Fifty-ninth street and Park avenue, will embody developments new to broadcasting. They will be the first studios designed especially for both sound and sight broadcasting, for WINS is the only station on the Eastern seaboard, operating in the broadcast frequency band, which has regularly scheduled programs synchronized with television. WINS operates on a daily schedule in unison with W2XCR, Experimental television station of the Jenkins Television Corporation.

The first new star of station WINS, Angela Warde, the young lady with New York's "sweetest voice," was introduced. Miss Warde was chosen from a field of 3,000 in a contest conducted by the New York Evening Journal, to find an official radio greeter for New York.

FATHER'S 'MERCY KILLING' OF BOY GOES TO GRAND JURY

SLAYING KEPT SECRET MORE THAN YEAR

Couldn't Bear to See Boy Suffer, Confession Says; Still Thinks Act Wise

MILLERSBURG, O., Jan. 15. — (AP.) — James Stenhouse, 39, waited in the county jail today for action by the grand jury on his confession that he slew his 2 year-old son because the boy "could not get well."

As Stenhouse waited, the grand jury was examining charges that Stenhouse chloroformed the boy because he had a brain infection which at best would leave him mentally deficient.

Stenhouse, who was able to keep his secret for more than a year, surrendered to the Sheriff Saturday and told of ending the boy's life when he felt he could no longer bear up under the ordeal of withholding his story.

Asked if he regretted his act, Stenhouse replied:

"Under the circumstances I would do the same thing again. I could not bear to see the little fellow suffer and my wife ruin her health by constantly being at his bedside when I knew the baby could not be cured. I did not want my wife to go crazy by worrying over the boy."

Stenhouse said he talked the boy's death over with his wife last Friday and they decided it would be best for him to confess.

During the time he kept the story Stenhouse said he would go on a drinking spree to "get cheery." He said he often drank until his wife threatened to go to police with the story. He added:

"I don't believe she would have told them, because she was afraid I would do something to myself for she knew how greatly I grieved."

County Detective William D. Dinsmore, of Washington, said Leona told him one of the four men stopped her and asked her for a kiss. When she refused, Leona told Dinsmore, he grabbed her arm. Freeing herself, the girl and her companion ran home.

Meanwhile, detectives said they expected to question May Henrion, 17, today in an effort to obtain further information relative to the attack upon her, Monday, by two men. She had been unconscious until yesterday. She obtained part of the license number of the automobile in which they fled. She frequently mumbled the number in her delirium.

MORE MARINES FOR NICARAGUA

By HOBART C. MONTEE
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The United States is planning soon to increase the strength of American armed forces in Nicaragua. It is expected that a force of from 300 to 500 Marines or bluejackets will be sent to augment the approximately 1,000 Marines there. Their specific purpose will be to assure a peaceful, orderly general election, scheduled for next fall. After the election and the induction of the newly elected government into office, these special troops will be withdrawn.

President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson have been considering the dispatch of additional forces for some time, but announcement has been withheld because it constitutes a reversal of the administration's announced policy to withdraw the Marines at the earliest possible time.

PRIEST INVITES WEALTHY TO JOB RALLY

Society, Banking, Business Leaders Urged to Join in Unemployment Protest

The Rev. Father James R. Cox today invited "the socially prominent, the industrialists and the bankers of Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania" to attend the unemployment mass meeting tomorrow in Pitt Stadium "to meet their unemployed neighbors."

Calling attention to the meeting, to begin at 2 p. m., he said:

"I hope many of the unemployed come and by their presence protest against the unemployment conditions, and ask Congress and the President to raise money to give jobs to the jobless.

"I also especially invite the old families, the society leaders, the industrialists, the bankers who are so interwoven with all life in Western Pennsylvania, to attend and sit alongside their unemployed neighbors.

WARM CLOTHES ADVISED

"Those attending should dress warmly, with galoshes, to be prepared, although the weather man says it will be dry and cool."

Some of the speakers for the event will include John Phillips, president of the State Federation of Labor, who will bring a message from Gov. Pinchot; Representative Matthew Dunn, Father Cox and others. Henry Ellenbogen will be chairman.

CEREMONIES START AT 1 P. M.

Gates will open at noon, three bands and a drum corps will begin playing at 1 o'clock.

A collie dog, "Laddie," will be given a medal by Father Cox.

"Laddie," a blue ribbon dog, made the trip with the marching thousands that invaded Washington demanding a $5,000,000,000 public improvement program. Mary D. Roetz, who owns the dog, showed him at the Sewickley dog show last year.

Father Cox Denies Political 'Charge'

Charges by the Republican National Committee that the march of the unemployed to Washington was inspired through political motives, especially anti-Hoover, was answered today by the Rev. Father James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's.

"My best answer is to point to the proposed St. Louis unemployed convention, in which the unemployed would name their own candidates. We favor neither the Republican nor the Democratic parties; they're just different names for the same thing. We're not against Hoover, but the system he represents.

"With us it's the protest of Main street against Wall street and Smithfield street.

"We want jobs, that's all."

The charges against the Cox army were made in the Republican National Committee's weekly news letter.

In part it said:

"The outstanding fact about the marches to Washington is that they had their genesis in politics and not in unemployment.

"The second (Cox) was inspired by political antagonism to President Hoover, led by men conspicuous in political circles for their opposition to him and deliberately planned to arouse public sentiment against him."

The committee letter bracketed the Communist march with that of Father Cox's legions, asserting the former wanted to discredit the United States and the latter Hoover.

The players already awaiting trial January 19, again were charged with participation in "a lewd performance," a violation of a city ordinance. They later were released on their own recognizance.

The raid was conducted by Capt. Jones despite a temporary restraining order the Superior Court issued after the first raid.

SHOOTING LEADS 3 TO PLEDGE

A girl and two young men solemnly pledged in Morals Court today they'd drink "no more bum gin and home-brew."

Their vow, demanded by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones, won them release on their own recognizance in the shooting of Josephine Steiner, 20, who detectives said is recovering.

Josephine, short of funds, interrupted a drinking party with the three in her apartment at 701 Ridge avenue a few nights ago to shoot herself below the heart.

The three who took the pledge were Geraldine Walker, 18; Josephine's roommate; Paul Marko, 22, of New Alexandria, and Charles Martin, 21, of Crabtree.

PROBE GAGGING OF PUPILS

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—A charge that adhesive tape was stuck over the mouths of second-grade boy pupils in the Central Elementary School to keep them from breaking the classroom silence out of turn, was under investigation today.

Mrs. Ralph Watts, the complainant, sent letters to the superintendent of the school district and others, charging that the mouth of her son, Willard, 7, was so taped and referring to the use of the gag as "barbaric."

Miss Vivian Heuss, the teacher, admitted use of the tape, but denied any hardship resulted. She said:

"Recently I let my class decide what should be done with pupils who spoke out of turn. Their idea was that paper should be placed over their mouths. That was done. I merely attached the paper with strips of adhesive tape. The paper was not kept on long."

THUGS HOLD UP RESTAURANT, STORE

Safes Looted in 2 Offices On Washington Boulevard; Robbers Escape in Taxicab

The holdup of Thompson's Fourth avenue restaurant, an A. & P. store in North Braddock, and the looting of safes in two establishments in Washington boulevard were among the robberies reported to police today.

Two robbers held up Thompson's restaurant and escaped with between $40 and $50, overlooking $75 in the cash register.

Masked by a woolen scarf, one armed robber forced O. M. Wilson, of 1814 Charles street, to stand aside while he looted a cash-drawer in the cashier's booth.

Fleeing at the approach of Wilson Cherry, of 106 West Stockton avenue, counter man, the robber fled, missing the contents of the register.

LOOKOUT ON GUARD

While the robber held up the restaurant, a confederate stood at the door.

Both men fled to Fourth and Smithfield street, where they escaped in a taxicab. Charles Webber, of 3268 Ward street, driver, said he drove the men to East Robinson street.

Four customers and other employes in the restaurant were not molested and were unaware of the robbery until Cherry gave chase.

Frank J. Forsythe, manager of the Liberty Lubricating Company, 1301 Washington boulevard, reported he discovered the safe door open, papers strewn about the office, and $1.10 missing.

The combination was found written on a piece of paper. Robbers entered the building with a pass key, police say.

SAFE LOOTED

At the Red Star Yeast Company, 1109 Washington boulevard, a 600-pound safe was dragged into a rear room, where the robbers knocked off the combination and stole $700, police said. Arthur Kreinseig, manager, said the money had been in the cash drawer. The robbery was discovered by police, who noticed the door of the plant open early today.

Two bandits rifled the cash registed in an A. & P. store, Overland street, North Braddock, after threatening the manager with a revolver and a blackjack today. They fled in a gray coupe.

CHURCH UNION DELAYED

While the decisive step remains to be taken, progress and harmony marked deliberations here of two commissions considering merger of the Methodist Episcopal and Methodist Protestant denominations, according to a statement by Bishop Herbert Welch, of the Pittsburgh area, Methodist Episcopal Church today. Conferences on union of the Methodist Episcopal body with the Presbyterian Church in the United States also were satisfactory, he asserted, and the general conference in Atlantic City in May will be asked to continue the conversations in behalf of the Methodist group.

SALE REDUCES SECURITY ON BANK LOAN

Foreclosure Leaves Property Assessed at $34,000 to Cover $227,000 Obligation

The closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company today has a property assessed at $34,000 as its security for $227,000 loans. This was revealed through the sale of a piece of property and six story warehouse to satisfy a $60,000 first mortgage and taxes which cut the security down to approximately $34,000.

The property, second and largest of three pieces jointly mortgaged to the Franklin bank by Herman Friedman, second-mortgage dealers, and D. Kellerman, produce merchant, to be sold in foreclosure proceedings, was purchased by the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company, holding the first mortgage, for $65,488, involving the $60,000 mortgage and the balance in interest and city, county and school taxes.

The question of security for the loans at the Franklin has been under investigation for some time, it is understood. The Kellerman loans, or many of them, are said to have been negotiated by Friedman, now facing an action in Federal Court for recovery of commissions alleged paid to him for services in securing loans.

TRANSACTIONS PROBED

Attorney George F. Taylor, Jr., special deputy Secretary of Banking in charge of the Franklin company, yesterday started a series of sessions at which he will attempt to probe intimately into Friedman's transactions with the bank. It is understood that these mortgages will figure in the discussion.

FIRST PIECE SOLD

The first piece sold, amounting to about a fourth of the total, was purchased at forced sale December 22 by the Fidelity Title and Trust Company to satisfy a first mortgage it held on the land and a three-story warehouse at 46-48 Eighteenth street. Price on it was $2,682 cash to satisfy taxes for 1930 and 1931, and cancellation of a loan of $9,578.73. The two constitute about three-fourths of the Franklin bank's security for the loans.

The money lent between 1923 and 1927 was secured by six mortgages on three adjoining pieces of property in the produce district, assessed by the county at $165,200.

SOLD FOR TAXES

Only one small piece of the once large property remains—at 42-44 Eighteenth street—and foreclosure on it to satisfy still another first mortgage is not improbable.

Debts of nearly $500,000 owed the bank by Friedman, Kellerman and the M. H. Parrish Company, of which Friedman is secretary, and which is in the hands of a receiver, were mentioned by a stockholders' committee, December 26, as evidence of gross mismanagement of the bank.

Friedman is indorser of notes of former City Treasurer Schooley. Kellerman's Agricultural Exchange was identified as a favored firm in city purchases of green goods in the Department of Supplies inquiry last winter.

History of the transactions shows that, in January, 1923, Kellerman gave two demand notes to the bank, one for $17,000, the other for $7,728.67, secured by a $25,000 mortgage on the three properties.

Additional security for the $7,728.67 note was a $35,000 mortgage on the same properties.

ADDITIONAL LOANS

In June, 1923, Kellerman borrowed $22,500 from the bank on a $50,000 mortgage on the corner property alone.

In August of the same year, Kellerman borrowed $100,000 on still another mortgage, this time for $100,000 on all three properties, which would make five mortgages on the corner property and four on the other two.

A mortgage on the Pike and Colville corner and one on the Eighteenth street properties for $50,000 was given in December, 1926, by Kellerman for a loan of $45,000.

Six months later, however, in June, 1927, still another mortgage was discounted by Friedman.

This mortgage for $35,097.50, had, in 1926, been borrowed on by Kellerman from George A. Carden and associates, of New York. Friedman bought the debt from them for $25,000, and gave it to the bank as security for a $35,000 demand note.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The Enameled Metals Company of Etna, Pa., was relieved yesterday by the Board of Tax Appeals of paying $32,406 in income and profits tax. Collection of that amount for income earned in 1918 was sought by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The board, however, held collection was barred by the statute of limitations.

Telephone Call Fatal to Woman

CLEVELAND, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Margaret Ordner, 44, of Parma, was worried because she had not heard from her niece Helen Pushcott, for several weeks. Last night her telephone rang and a voice said:

"Helen is in the hospital—"

Mrs. Ordner, ill with heart disease, fell dead from the shock.

The rest of the message was that the niece was happy and working in the hospital.

CITY WILL ACT IN CHECK CASE

Informal discussions are being held regarding probable action to be taken to collect $60,000 in checks, given by a real estate broker in payment of delinquent taxes and being held in the City Treasurer's office as cash.

City Treasurer R. W. Thompson asked what the program would be, said:

"We are going to do something about it to get the money. That will come later. Controller Kerr is handling the subject."

One of the banks on which the checks were drawn is said to have informed Controller Kerr that action would be taken to make them good. Acceptance of the checks in behalf of the city by Former Treasurer Roy D. Schooley was one of the grounds for the indictment against him.

NEW WITNESSES CALLED IN QUIZ

Friedman's affairs. Friedman was quizzed for about two hours today.

Today's session was the second of a series that will examine records of all mortgages and loans, all stock or bond transactions, deposits and withdrawals of Friedman's in the last five years, it was understood.

An amazing trail of transactions is said to be opening before the investigators.

Friedman was one of four men heard yesterday. C. A. Bardolph, former president of the bank, was first to be questioned. Following the hearing, he was arrested on a charge of embezzling $250,000 from the bank.

The charge was based on the common law, specifying no counts. A statutory information, itemizing the charges, was to be filed today or tomorrow. Questioned as to the Bardolph case, Taylor said:

"More charges will be forthcoming against Bardolph when my audit of the bank's records is complete."

FREED ON BOND

Bardolph is free under $10,000 bond for hearing, put up by the Globe Indemnity Company within an hour of his arrest.

Others called yesterday included R. T. Armstrong, former vice president of the bank, and Nicola Taylor has issued subpenas for a second hearing January 25, when affairs of the City Treasury, as conducted by former Treasurer Roy D. Schooley, and as they affected the bank, will be scanned.

'MERCY' PLANE REACHES GOAL

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—After fighting rain, wind, sleet and snow storms most of the time since it left New York at daybreak Tuesday, an airplane bringing an artificial breathing device to Tucson for the use of Miss Alice Hilliard, suffering from pneumonia, landed late last night.

Miss Hilliard's condition, however, has been improved for two days, making use of artificial breathing aids unnecessary.

When the plane left the East Coast its arrival was considered a matter of life and death. Miss Hilliard then had relinquished the only oxygen apparatus in Tucson, a device physicians said necessary to keep her alive, to a 12-year-old boy suffering from the after effects of a mastoid operation.

The boy, Patten Levings, son of the city editor of the Los Angeles Herald-Express, died despite Miss Hilliard's sacrifice.

The raid was a continuation of the police drive in many sections against gambling houses and speakeasies.

Mellon Denies 'Deal' on Loan

ment which he said had been dictated by Secretary Mellon.

In it, Mr. Mellon admitted he had met President Olaya, of Colombia, at a social function, but said their conversation was "general and respecting financial and other conditions in Colombia." He denied discussing the Barco oil concession and said he never conferred with the State Department regarding a Colombian loan.

Asked later if he meant Mellon was never consulted about the Barco concession, Gregg quickly answered:

"I was careful not to say that; I don't know. He never suggested that the Gulf Oil Company confer with representatives of the Colombia government to arrange the concession."

DENIES VIOLATION

Gregg then discussed the legal aspects of the impeachment charge, contending Mellon's stock ownership did not violate the statute forbidding secretaries of the Treasury from engaging in trade and commerce.

Gregg named several of Mellon's predecessors and said they had stockholdings. Included were William G. McAdoo and Senator Glass, of Virginia, Secretary of the Treasury during the Wilson administration.

Taking up the charge Mellon had made large tax returns to himself and companies in which he is interested, Gregg drew on his one-time government experience as solicitor of the Internal Revenue Bureau, to outline in detail tax case procedure. He emphasized that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue is appointed by the President with the approval of the Senate and "is not an employe of Mr. Mellon."

Gregg said Mr. Mellon told him he had never heard of the Federal Architect. Patman said Mellon, through this publication, had increased the use of aluminum in public buildings.

AMORTIZATION REFUND

Gregg denied any knowledge on Mellon's part of the huge amortization refund made several years ago to the Aluminum Company of America, in which the Secretary had an interest. He said:

"Since Mr. Mellon has been Secretary of the Treasury he has received $91,000 in refunds and has been assessed $209,000 in additional taxes, making a net additional $108,000."

Regarding stock holdings, Gregg said:

"Mr. Mellon controls no corporation. What his family and business associates control I don't know. Mr. Mellon does not own more than 50 per cent of the stock in any corporation.

"I do not regard his family as an issue."

"Mr. Mellon personally owns no bank stock. He sold it all before he took office.

"I checked up to see if he sold it to a corporation in which he was interested; he did not.

"I checked up to see if there were any strings to it; there were not.

"Mr. Mellon owns about 15 per cent of the stock of the Aluminum Company."

Referring to the charge Mellon engaged in the liquor business, Gregg said:

"The Overholt Company went out of business three years before prohibition. When Mr. Mellon took office he created an irrevocable trust with the trustee having the sole power to dispose of the liquor interest. It was liquidated in 1926."

Gregg had not finished his statement when the committee adjourned until Monday. He intimated he would want five minutes more and then Patman will ask permission to reply.

PAPERS KEPT SECRET

Meanwhile, while refusing again to give the Senate's foreign bond probers the correspondence relating to the Barco oil concession, Assistant Secretary White, of the State Department, offered to let the members see the papers confidentially, but said they referred to relations between the United States and a foreign government that should not be made public.

Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, had asked for the communications. He pointed out it would be impossible to cross-examine White if the correspondence were furnished confidentially.

SENATE ORDERS MAIL RATE QUIZ

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—A broad investigation into the postal rate structure was ordered by the Senate today in adopting a resolution by Senator McKeller (Dem.), of Tennessee.

In the preamble, McKellar set forth charges that improper ocean mail contracts had been negotiated by the Postoffice Department. He also referred to reports that the postmaster general proposed to increase parcel post rates.

Oral arguments will be heard February 9. Capone, meanwhile, is in the Cook County Jail serving time, but gaining no credit on his penitentiary sentence.

CHARGE KILLERS GUARD PRISON

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—After hearing one convict charge that Warden Preston E. Thomas "prefers killers" for guards at the Ohio Pentitentiary, the Ohio Senate Committee investigating alleged prison cruelties, was in temporary adjournment today.

The testimony against the warden was given yesterday by William Baron, a bank robber, one of several convicts called before the committee.

Alleging that several killings of prisoners by guards had been "covered up" by making the records show that the guard had been "attacked," Baron said:

"The guard that kills a prisoner generally gets his salary raised."

BLIND SCHOOL GETS PERMIT

The Zoning Board of Appeals has granted a variation to the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind, allowing them to use as a school and workshop the former Turner Hall, at Craig and Filmore streets, Oakland.

The permit had been protested by neighboring property owners on the ground that the industrial use might be a detriment to the district. Representatives of the Association for the Blind declared that their school should have the same rights as other educational institutions in the district.

The Zoning Board is allowing the installation of motors not to exceed three horsepower each, to run machinery in the new school for the blind. It is the intention of the association to abandon the old headquarters at 434 Boulevard of the Allies.

The session was adjourned to resume work at the call of the chair. Commissioner Charles C. McGovern last night was unable to state definitely when the salary board sessions will be held.

Costumes and Music Add Charm To Interesting Display Staged By Tri-Borough Group

One of the most unusual events the Tri-borough Club of New Kensington has ever staged was the exhibit of rare antiques which made of yesterday's meeting an occasion of more than ordinary interest. Not only was the exhibit worth while, but it was presented in an especially interesting manner. The articles exhibited were arranged according to the countries from which they came, a club member was dressed in the costume of each country and as she was introduced by Mrs. Daniel M. McBride, home department chairman, each gave a talk concerning her exhibit. Adding further to the atmosphere, the music department offered an appropriate musical background for each talk.

There was pottery from Italy, there was laces and embroideries in the French section. England showed a teapot and a plate, both of which were more than 200 years old. India's collection included a replica of the Taj Mahal, and among the loveliest things exhibited was a museum piece of rose jade from China. In this same section was also a make-up box 300 years old. The meeting was held in the Aluminum Club and was attended by juniors as well as seniors.

I. C. C. TO BACK LAKE RATES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—The Interstate Commerce Commission will announce a decision within the next few days upholding the present differential of 35 cents per ton on lake cargo coal shipments, it was predicted today.

The question involved is whether the rates paid by Ohio and Pennsylvania bituminous coal operators on one hand, and by Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee operators on the other, are so related as to unduly prejudice the former and unduly prefer the latter.

The present differential of 35 cents a ton in these rates as between the respective fields represents a compromise rate agreed to by the railroads serving the mines involved.

Eastern operators maintain that, despite their geographical position, the present differential is not high enough to enable them to compete with southern fields on lake cargo business.

ARREST ENDS LONG SEARCH

When Coraopolis police saw Gordon Stuff, 23, now of Hartford City, Ind., in Coraopolis, they arrested him, for they said they knew he had been indicted in Allegheny County months ago. They also arrested his companion, Fred Buffenbarger, and the two young women with them—Thelma Harrison, 22, Mrs. Mary Fern Cokl, 27—were detained for their parents in Hartford City.

Justice of the Peace George Kaser held the two men for court. Stuff on a charge of stealing an automobile and Buffenbarger charged with carrying a revolver. Stuff also was to be turned over to federal authorities for alleged violation of the Mann act.

Loan Board Official Admits $628 Theft

Doyle S. Glosner, 39, of New Castle, secretary and treasurer of the Lawrence County National Farm Loan Association, pleaded guilty in Federal Court, today, to embezzling $628.95 of association funds. He was placed on two-year probation by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, and ordered to make restitution within that time.

Bottle Explodes, Cap Is Blown Down Throat

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Fred Agglang, of Kinistino, near here, was wont to boast of the excellence of his home brewed beer.

But he is not so loud in his praises today. A concoction of his own making blew a metal cap down his throat as he was opening the bottle with his teeth. He was brought to a hospital here and the cap removed.

Now Agglang uses a regular bottle opener.

Michigan 'Beer' Tax Held Constitutional

DETROIT, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—Michigan's malt tax law, fought since its passage by the Legislature, was upheld as constitutional today in a decision by William S. Sayres, Jr., federal master in chancery.

The malt tax has netted $491,305 since last May. Obviously aimed to tax any malt users it also hits at manufacturers of home brew and those who supply the state's blind pigs with keg beer.

100-HAND TEST STIRS BRIDGE EXPERTS

Discussion on Systems To Follow Games Here; Team Members Picked

Pittsburgh bridge fans will have an opportunity of studying merits of competing systems of contract bridge when local experts stage a 100-hand tournament under auspices of the Sun-Telegraph and the Pittsburgh Bridge Club in the latter's clubrooms in the William Penn Hotel next week.

Constructive discussions will be held on each hand played. The public is invited to the sessions. Two teams of four players and each with a relief member will play 25 hands nightly on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The team upholding the Ely Culbertson system will be composed of Mrs. Raymond J. Burns, Bernard Summer, Ross W. Tapp and Simon F. Gerber. Exponents of the "official" system, which failed to bring victory to Sydney Lenz and his partner in the recent tournament, will be Mrs. Grace Lear, George McClure, C. F. Moodey, R. J. Henderson and H. J. Bailey.

All the players are holders of one or more titles gained in tournaments. Separate rooms, with only a referee present in each, will be used. A special committee will shuffle the decks and the hands will be placed on boards. The hands will be alternated. Culbertson exponents in one room will play the hand used by "official" players in the other room. All hands and their plays will be marked on a blackboard in the clubrooms where the public will hear expert opinions.

DESCH OPENS TECH COURSE

Prof. Cecil H. Desch of the department of metallurgy at Sheffield University in England will open the 1932 public lecture series at the Carnegie Institute of Technology this evening. Prof. Desch

Prof. Desch is a fellow of the Royal Society. He has the D.Sc. and Ph.D. degrees. Author of a text book on metallurgy and books on chemistry, cement testing and intermetallic compounds, he spoke in Pittsburgh last November at the third international conference on bituminous coal. At present he is lecturing at Cornell University under the George Fisher Baker Foundation. Upon his return to England next month he will become superintendent of the metallurgical department of the National Physical Laboratory at Teddington, suburb of London.

St. Paul's Orphans' Home Plans Building

GREENVILLE, Pa., Jan. 15.—(AP)—The executive committee of St. Paul's Orphans' Home and Home for the Aged announced yesterday that a new building will be erected soon. The new structure is a gift of William A. Kunkel, Greensburg, as a memorial to Olive, Henry and William A. Kunkel, Jr.

MID-SEASON MODE FAVORS BLACK AND WHITE CHECKS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The check is still indorsed as one of the best of all patterns. And it is being very much used for winter sports things as well as for some of the very early spring clothes. Very finely checked designs are favored for general wear, while sports things have touches of very boldly printed or woven checks. It is one of the best devices for black and white material, even to the woman who is generally averse to prints and figured fabrics. And so, as prints are trying to make a comeback this year, the designers are wisely putting out checked designs so that all may be suited. A well-tailored frock of wool in a very fine check design is splendid for mid-season wear and is one of the best ways of having the first black and white frock of the season. As to the new clothes, at present one can detect few radical changes. We all seem to like the present styles and the designers are clever enough to continue giving them to us, with seasonal modifications and alterations of course. Which is quite as it should be.

* * *

TO SHOW you how simple and smart are the clothes shown in the mid-season collections, we present a sketch of a Jenny model for early spring wear. It is smartly tailored and is of finely checked black and white woolen. As a smart touch, black cired ribbon borders the surplice neckline and makes the belt and narrow cuffs. The bodice flares at one hip. Two umbrella pleats in the skirt repeat the flare of the peplum.

HUNT ROBBERS OF 2 BANKS

ATLEE, Okla., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Apparently scoffing at outlaw history—a sanguinary story of death or capture for Oklahoma bandits who went too far and tried to rob two banks at the same time—Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd was hunted in the hills of Eastern Oklahoma today.

Officers believed he led the men who robbed the banks of Castle and Paden, 10 miles apart, of $5,000 yesterday. Three robbers participated in each holdup.

NEW STAR SPEED STUDIED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Two distant star-groups, speeding away from the earth at 15,000 miles a second, today gave astronomers possible new evidence that the universe is "exploding."

Discovery of this terrific velocity, the greatest so far found among the giant star-groups or nebula that seem to be rushing away from the earth, was announced by the Carnegie Institution of Washington. The discovery was made at the institution's Mt. Wilson Observatory, Pasadena, Cal.

The two new star-groups, apparently breaking all previous speed limits of space, are expected to shed additional light on the problem of whether the universe is actually "exploding" or expanding at great speed.

This very problem is now being studied at Pasadena by world-famous scientists, including Dr. Einstein, Dr. Walter S. Adams, director of Mt. Wilson Observatory, and Dr. Willem de Sitter, of Holland.

Fred A. Fichtel, president of the club, will be chairman. Five new members of the club's board of directors will be elected. Business of the meeting will be followed by an hour of entertainment under the direction of Maude Ingersoll, with C. H. Roth, secretary-manager of the club, as master of ceremonies.

QUIZ TWO MEN IN BLAST

John Adrani, of Denniston avenue, Swissvale, and Tony Gravandi, of 20 Miller street, Rankin, were to be brought to the County Detective Bureau for questioning in connection with the explosion and fire which destroyed the home of Ralph Giordano, Miller street, early yesterday, and partially wrecked that of Gravandi. They were arrested last night by county detectives and police Chief Michael Jordan, of Rankin.

Giordano, whose alleged confession to police that he caused the explosion to collect $2,000 insurance on the building, is also to be questioned by county detectives today.

Woman Explorer Fights for Health

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Violet Cressy-Marcks, a slender, blonde Englishwoman, left New York today for California, where she hopes to recover from the effects of tropical fever which attacked her while she was journeying 28,000 miles up the Amazon and over the Andes—by launch, canoe, on a mule, and on foot—more than a year ago.

Since 1924 Mrs. Cressy-Marcks has been traveling to the far places of the earth, paying her own way. She has trekked from Cairo to Capetown, away up into Lapland, down through the heart of Soviet Russia, across deserts and over mountains and deep into the jungle.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Church officials planned today to transfer to a country pastorate the Rev. Smith, of Baltimore, district superintendent, said he would request the minister's transfer in the interest of his health.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1932, Dail Mirror, Inc.)

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

At Police Headquarters During the Line-Up: Gee, they all say they're 17 or 19. They all wear "snappy" overcoats—with the hammy and puffed shoulders. The extremely long coats and tan shoes. "Were you ever arrested before?" snaps Deputy Chief Inspector Sullivan, perched on a stand through an amplifier. "No" sulks the prisoner, blinded by the rows of lamps on the elevated platform about 15 feet in front of the veteran officer. The large audience of badge-wearing men and women, which the "Two-Gun" Crowleys can't see, except in bunches. "No?" bellows the Deputy Chief Inspector. "In 1928 you did 6 months at the Reformatory. In 1929 you were arrested again, weren't you?" "Yes, for grand larceny," the prisoner reluctantly admits, when he finally realizes that the copper yelling at him has the records before him on his music stand. Here and there a detective slumbers through the routine, which probably bores him. It was so exciting to me. I had never witnessed so spell-binding a melodrama. Every "act" was exciting. Then the proceedings were interrupted by an attache, who thundered: "Attention!" The audience leaps to its feet. Commissioner Mulrooney makes an entrance, nods to them all and takes a front row pew. Then they all settle back in their chairs again. They were saving the wallop of the show for the Commissioner. And what a wallop, too. Eight desperate counterfeiters file on to the platform, before which is juggled a microphone, so that when they talk they may be heard in the far corners of the place. The first to talk confessed that he was a reporter! Hmmm. That sounds good for the graft! He was introduced, he said, to Mr. Plummer, the man next to him. Mr. Plummer said that he was formerly a publisher and editor. Well, now I feel better. So they finally got an editor, did they? It's about time! At any rate, the two newspapermen appeared intelligent. They'll probably get a sweet stretch for counterfeiting all that General Motors stock. The others were greasy looking, dirty things. "Contact" men they said they were. How ridiculous! For nearly a year these Barnums had eluded the "Finest." But they finally went the way of all flash. They had "taken" somebody for 20 Gs, but had prepared for a honey of a scoop—a five-million-dollar job—and they had duplicated the General Motors and A. T. & T. certificates almost flawlessly. Wonder why all those cab drivers who are caught by the cops aiding and abetting thieves always employ the same ability? That they didn't know they were driving crooks. Huh—so then the inspector screams at him: "You've been arrested for the same thing twice before!" You'd never think to look at most of them up there that they were capable of such cunning. All of them reminded you of The Man in the Street. So to the inspector's office on the 2nd floor. The uniformed lieutenant at the front desk phones to this precinct and that one. "What about that Nemo Theater hold-up last night?" The voice at the other end didn't know much about it. "What do you mean, you don't know?" thunders the lieut. Then he phones to a Brooklyn station house. "In that stick-up last night was anyone injured?" "What? Shot in the leg? How much did they get? $20? Get me some results, and hurry about it, too!" So that's the New York Police Department in action? Not bad. Wonder what the Tombs looks like? Never saw the Tombs, except from a cab window. Wonder if Warden Bart, who they say never smiles, can be made to? He's an easy audience—or maybe it's because he knows I'm on a paper. "The thing you printed about me was printed 4 years ago by another paper," he remarked. "I know," I told him, "that was one of the things about you I had never known before." Wonder why the newsreel editors never snap a shot of the visitor's entrance to the Tombs? What a shot that would be! The glum faces of the women waiting to go in there in bunches to chat through the screen doors to their loved ones, et al. The sad pan of the high valler gal leaning against the cold stone because Her Man Done Somebody Wrong. The Bridge of Sighs, newly painted. Mmm. It doesn't jell with the drab side of the rest of the sector. And that bridge leading from the jailhouse to the District Attorney's office is the Bridge of Hope. Aptly christened. "The Parson," who runs one of the elevators in the Criminal Court Bldg. Every time he opens the car gate at the main landing he calls: "This way to Freedom and Fresh Air!" Never saw the sun shine so beautifully before, either. Think I'll stay up and take a walk. No, I'll go into that clean looking restaurant near the Tombs and get some java. The corned beef looks better than it tastes. Hmm. That's the first time I ever saw anyone reading my column. The three of them are sharing various sections of the sheet. Guess the middle one doesn't go for my stuff. He hasn't changed his expression yet. But he seems interested. Wonder what interests that type of chap, anyway? Then down near the end his face lights up. "Here's a good one," he ejaculates to his chum in the adjoining chair. Then he reads it aloud. I kept looking at him until my coffee got cold. "Glad something in it pleased you," I called to him. "What?" he called back. I said: "That guy's stuff is swell, ain't it?" His face got so flushed. "Know you by your voice, Walter!" he said, and then I went over to their table and told them I was visiting "Below the Deadline" for the first time in over two years and thanked them for even reading my drivel and shook hands with them and blew. If it weren't for all those readers. Oh, well, why get mentil-sential? Look at the big crowd of Communists barking their heads off near the N. Y. State Building. And all those cops! They wouldn't have much chance fighting that bunch of policemen. The building is protected by so many of them. On horseback, motorcycle, car and on foot. The cops listen patiently to the leaders getting themselves a mess of laryngitis. Guess I'll ankle over to the City Hall—maybe Jimmy's in. There they go tearing down the rest of those buildings in the alley where I begun all these headaches. In the days when I didn't get as much of a kick out of things as I do now. They said then I'd weary of it. Yeah? It was a dirty building, at that. Let 'em tear it down—it has a handful of ugly memories in it for me, anyway. Park Row! Hmmm, the Pulitzer's World Building. The Bridge. Gee, look! There's green grass in the tiny parks near the Hall of Records place. Guess I'll go back to the Communists and wait for a riot. "Pellow Workers!" cries one lad, lifted high on the shoulders of two colleagues. They all sing their theme ditty—and that woman with that frightful looking gold tooth makes me ill. Wonder what those kids, who wanted to be Communists, are thinking about over there across the way in the Tombs? Just kids—not more than 17. They will do plenty of years in Sing Sing or some jail for putting bombs on boats in the East River and then racing up to the Bridge and waiting to see the vessels blow up. They regret it now, they said—because all their leaders comfort them with is "talk, talk, talk". Each newspaper is represented. One of the boys recognizes me. "Hello, Walter," he niftys, "whatcha' doin' downtown, learnin' to be a newspaperman?"

Clarke Gable, Conrad Nagel And Ralph Graves in Film 'Interlude'

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, by King Features Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15.

News wasbeing whispered about Hollywood today that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has arrived at a tentative cast for its big experiment—the filming of "Strange Interlude."

Norma Shearer, of course, is set as the heroine of Eugene O'Neill's freudian drama, famous for its asides.

Now comes the rumor, through secret channels, that Clark Gable, Ralph Graves and Conrad Nagle are likely to play the three masculine leads.

Conrad Nagle

My unofficial source names Gable as the doctor, who becomes the heroines sweetheart; Ralph Graves as the husband and Conrad Nagle as the futile Charlie. Preliminary tests of these actors are said to have been satisfactory. Of course, this doesn't settle the matter—as we Hollywood reporters learned from "Grand Hotel"—but the tip seems worth passing on.

JOTTINGS FROM HOLLYWOOD

On the promise of something exciting, went to hear Isaac Don Levine and Prof. Alexander Kaun debate on Russian Soviet. Paul Bern, who knows as much about social reform as he does about pictures, was chairman. Saw Kay Johnson, John Cromwell and Florence Eldridge applauding prediction that Soviet must fall. Prof. Kaun had his advocates, too. B. P. Schulberg's another film person in the audience. Ran into Bill Powell at First National. He and Carole Lombard just back from Yosemite where Bill sprained a finger ice-skating. He says it was under him when he sat down. Asked him about his skiing. "On the level, I'm great," he flipped. Later at M. G. M. talked with Myrna Loy, who also has been to the mountains—Lake Arrowhead. She stayed at a friend's cabin, half a mile up from the lake. Had to carry provisions from the store. Edmund Goulding lunching with Wallie Beery.

Eddie always wears sweaters. Saw Joan Crawford's two scotties, disconsolately waiting outside her dressing room. The Marquis de la Falaise, lunching with several other Frenchmen. Comparatively, his gestures are economical. Over to R-K-O and met Bert Wheeler. He says his wife (Bernice Spier) will be filing that divorce suit soon.

'Cheat' Now Talker in Fulton

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Cheat," old melodrama of the silent days, came into the Fulton yesterday, embellished with typical Hollywood talk and the beauty of Tallulah Bankhead.

This is the story of the young society matron, who flirts and gambles and gets branded as "a cheat" by another man. The idea of a man branding a woman with a red hot seal is reminiscent of when the movies were young.

Irving Pichel, Pittsburgh's own, is the villain of the piece. In ancient silent versions—we believe there were two—the villain was a Hindu, or something. Now he's an American, with Oriental ideas.

Mr. Pichel and Miss Bankhead do all right with their roles. But, in spite of their efforts and those of supporting players, an element of insincerity cannot be eluded. And the climaxing coutroom scene, with Miss Bankhead breaking into hysteric emotion, isn't very effective.

The picture has been given elaborate and modern production. However, some of its incidents seem as out-of-date as a Bill Hart gallop.

Plays, Players, By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Mourning Becomes Electra," which will be in the Nixon for two weeks, beginning Monday, is the thirty-fourth play by Eugene O'Neill since 1916, when his first, "Bound East for Cardiff," was produced in the Wharf Theater, Provincetown, Mass. This modern treatment of the Electra theme from the Greek will have 14 acts divided into three parts, the first of which will end with a recess for hash. Judith Anderson and Florence Reed are in it. So is our old friend, Thurston Hall. Seats for the first week are selling at the b. o.

Movie Studio Praises Weather Man

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Newspaper readers may scoff at the weather man all they want and brand his daily bulletin unreliable, but officials at the Paramount plant in New York have found 90 per cent of his predictions to be correct. This average, incidentally, was not struck from just a month's o. a year's experience. It came after more than a decade of production at the eastern studio.

Former Comedy Star In Film Romance

Walter Hiers, former comedy star, Maurice Black, well-known stage and screen actor, and George Raft, who scored a personal success in "Scarface," have been signed by Paramount to enact important parts in "Dancers in the Dark," the dance hall romance being filmed at Paramount's Hollywood studios.

How Does a Woman Champion Manage?

Women champions cannot have "off days." Day after day of practice and play, and matches that permit no postponements. Then how do they manage during regular periods when other women are sunk with pain? They meet these monthly emergencies with Midol, and they don't ever experience a twinge of periodic pain.

Harmless as it is, a Midol tablet blocks all possibility of periodic pain for hours at a stretch. It isn't a narcotic. But it acts in seven minutes, and lets you menstruate in comfort! Just ask the druggist for Midol.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative, safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling — sick headache — torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

Thousands use them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Science has never been able to isolate the cold germ . . . the infection is termed ultravirus—a poison-producing substance that spreads through the system causing the well-known outward symptoms. But treating the symptoms cannot stop inward infection.
Many years of world-wide experience proves that Bromo Quinine tablets destroy this ultravirus and eliminate it from the system—quickly and completely.
Remember, inward infection can be driven out only from within.

Pittsburgh Realty Values Triple in 30 Years

COUNTY STUDIES LEGALITY OF POOR TAX INCREASE

DUNN APPEALS FOR RENEWAL OF COURAGE

Trade Group Hears Leader Urge Revival of Founders' Spirit; Mellons Praised

Comparative statistics for the last 30 years show that taxable real estate in Pittsburgh has tripled, that total taxable wealth in Allegheny County has increased nearly five times, per capita wealth has increased more than three times and total wages paid in manufacturing industries in the county have increased nearly four times.

These facts were pointed out by Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Chamber of Commerce, in an address to the chamber yesterday in which he declared that Pittsburgh, suffering from temporary economic problems, needs "a new baptism of the faith and courage which enabled its founders to build so splendidly."

'GIANT GROWTH' CITED

The value of products of Pittsburgh mills and factories trebled during the 30-year period, and tonnage increased from 65,000,000 to 213,000,000 during that time, he pointed out in his address, entitled "Pittsburgh's Giant Growth in the Twentieth Century." Bank clearings increased from $1,528,478,652 to $10,162,939,970, or nearly seven times, and postal receipts increased nearly nine times, according to Dunn.

Dunn praised the work of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and his brother, Richard B. Mellon, whom he said were active promoters of the community expansion of Pittsburgh and loyal citizens of this city.

PRAISES MELLONS

He said:

"While many other men who made great fortunes here left to spend them elsewhere, the Mellons have been loyally devoted to Pittsburgh. They have neglected no opportunity to promote Pittsburgh industry. More than $20,000,000 in buildings, despite trade conditions, are being erected in Pittsburgh today as a tribute from them."

The statistics were submitted by Dunn against a prophecy made 30 years ago, he said, that Pittsburgh, by transfer of general offices and heads of corporations to New York, would lose its financial and industrial prestige.

SUITOR SHOOTS PEACEMAKER

Chivalry exacts a high price in these days.

Befriending a woman who said she had been struck by her escort, Joseph Bacco, 26, of 4751 Yew street, was in St. Francis Hospital with a bullet wound in his abdomen.

Joseph Mossart, 36, of 507 Allegheny avenue, was in Presbyterian Hospital with a stab wound in his left side, because he attempted to subdue a man who used offensive language in front of his son, James, 10. His assailant fled and Mossart was taken to the hospital by police.

Bacco was shot when he and Harry Kohler, of 435 Dargan street, gave chase to Clarence (Doc) Graham, 40, Negro, of 110 Winslow street, accused of having struck Carrie Ross, 28, of 4028 Ewing street, his girl friend. Graham and the Ross woman were arrested a short time later as they walked arm-in-arm in Ewing street.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SS. RAWALPINDI, Jan. 14.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Will somebody please wire me C. O. D. something that's happened at home since November 21, my day of sailing? Did the Democrats take Congress? Did Jimmy Walker get Mooney out? Who won the football game in Pasadena? All I hear is "Culbertson won five rubbers." "Culbertson won three rubbers." Who is Culbertson and who is rubber? If he is that important there let's run him on the Democratic ticket, that will cure him of rubbering. On an English boat and I have misplaced my dress suit and letters of introduction, so I haven't eaten anything or met anyone. Yours, WILL.

10-MILL LIMIT SNAGS PLEA FOR FUNDS

Directors' Lawyer Scores Unfavorable Publicity For Blocking Bank Loan

The request of the Poor Directors for an increase of three mills in their tax levy for 1932 has been taken under advisement by the County Commissioners.

Attorney Harry McIntosh, solicitor for the board, who appeared before the Commissioners yesterday in presenting the request said:

"Notwithstanding all the Ray Sprigle publicity that we have had in the newspapers recently, for 25 years we have gotten a dollar's worth of value for every dollar spent."

NEW SYSTEM URGED

A suggestion by Commissioner C. M. Barr that the Poor Directors put in a system whereby all disbursements will be handled by a controller was welcomed by the directors, who said that they would be glad to install such a system.

Concerning the $600,000 loan which the directors have tried to negotiate with several banks to carry them until tax money is available, McIntosh said:

"The banks think that we have had too much unfavorable publicity and will not lend us the money this year although last year and the year before we obtained $400,000 without any question."

In this year's budget the directors said they have cut salaries from 10 to 20 per cent.

LEGAL PROBLEM STUDIED

Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, explaining that if the 3-mill raise is levied the total tax would exceed the constitutional limit of 10 mills that the Commissioners are permitted to levy, said:

"For 125 years Allegheny County never had to borrow a dime. In 1924 it started for the financial rocks. Babcock (former Commissioner E. V. Babcock) used to say 'We are rich,' but I knew six years ago that we would go broke. It's come to the place now where we have to call in the lawyers to find out if we can raise the money."

McIntosh said that the necessity for the increased millage is due to the increase in outside relief work of the board, which this year reached $1,250,000. The balance of the budget for institutional work has been cut, he said.

PAINTED GLASS SHOW AT TECH

The current exhibition at the College of Fine Arts at Carnegie Tech presents examples of the work of A. L. Pitassi, designer of painted glass.

Glass for the Church of St. Gregory at Chicago and for the Cathedral of the Queen of the Holy Rosary at Toledo, both designed by the Pittsburgh architect, William R. Perry, is shown. The exhibition is arranged to elucidate the procedure of the design and also of the technical execution of the idea.

Mr. Pitassi differs from many designers in his medium, in that he prefers to make his drawings without putting in meticulous details. He depends entirely upon his experience to work out the design in detail directly, while composing from his palette of richly colored glass. He is particularly concerned in overcoming the blurring caused by certain juxtapositions of color.

The subjects of the windows at the Carnegie Institute of Technology are ecclesiastical figures familiar in religious history. The exhibition will continue through the next two weeks.

Enlarged Quarters To Aid Needy in Useful Work

By PENELOPE REDD

Sunday, January 24, the enlarged quarters of the Goodwill Industries at Liberty avenue and Twenty-eighth street, designed by Lawrence Wolfe, architect, will be dedicated.

Penelope Redd

Here the workers whom nobody wants find work. The crippled and the forsaken may earn their bread by useful labor.

Cast off by the efficient world they salvage clothing, furniture and toys, likewise discarded in the ruthless pace of life.

Yesterday's treasures and necessities are restored for similar service to new and grateful owners.

Clothes come in great bags. Sorters classify the types. Workers are trained to clean and reblock hats, mend shoes, renovate dresses, coats and suits.

Vagrant garments, worn beyond repair, descend to the humblest workers in the Goodwill Industries, those whom approaching blindness and crippled joints render useless for tasks requiring agility.

NOTHING WASTED

Several of these old workers cut garments into cleaning cloths,

THEFT SUSPECT SHOT IN CHASE

Frank Froman, without a home, was in Allegheny General Hospital today with a bullet wound in both legs.

Froman was shot by John W. McCann, postoffice employe, as he is alleged to have fled from a Market street shop with a $60 radio under his arm, police said.

McCann and H. C. Simpson, a fellow worker, both of Swissvale, chased Froman.

McCann called to Froman to halt, threatening to shoot. Closing in on the fleeing man, police said, McCann fired when Froman, about to jump into a cab, threw the radio at his pursuers.

FRAUD CHARGED IN JOB SALE

Accused of "selling" jobs for fees ranging from $2 to $53 to unemployed in Imperial and in Clarion County in a plant which he is alleged to have promised to build at Clinton for the manufacture of gasoline from coal, W. C. Lanning, 55, who gave his address as 1732 Broadway, Beechview, was held in county jail today on charges of obtaining money under false pretense and conspiracy to defraud following a hearing before Justice of the Peace A. S. Keith, of Imperial, last night.

Lanning was returned here from Renovo where he had fled, police said, following his escape from Constable Howard Quinn, of Imperial, as the latter was returning him to jail after a preliminary hearing before Keith shortly after Christmas.

Police said he had collected "retainer fees" from more than 75 unemployed men in Imperial after promising them jobs.

Police, doubting Klenke's story, believe he was injured in a street fight.

HANDLESS ARTIST SUPPORTS FAMILY OF THREE

'Keeps Chin Up' Despite His Misfortune

"When you fight a losing battle,
And you have no chance to win,
Though the pill be very bitter
Keep your chin up boy, and grin
For all the world hates a quitter
Hates them like God hates sin
Put your shoulder to it bravely
When you lose, do so gamely,
Keep your chin up boy, and grin."

This poem was written as his motto in life by George A. Shirer, 43-year-old coal mine dispatcher, painter, artist, poet and former cowboy who has managed to support his wife and two children in spite of the handicap of having both hands and one arm off, for the past 24 years. Three years ago he began painting window signs in his spare time. A year ago he began work on the seven canvases he has completed since then.

Holding his brushes in his mouth, he paints from memory and imagination. His subjects are storms, horses and cowboy scenes of the Southwest, where he rode herd on a ranch in Oklahoma 25 years ago. On October 19, 1907, a gun exploded in his hands while hunting rabbits. In spite of the loss of both hands he has not lost his taste for rabbits, and still hunts them, he said, pulling the trigger with a strap in his mouth. Several days ago he hitchhiked from Adah, Pa., near Uniontown, to Pittsburgh, carrying two of his canvases, "Tragedy at the Water Hole" and "When the Work's All Done This Fall," to try to interest art dealers here. He was unsuccessful, and trudged patiently back home, undiscouraged. He said:

"I get lots of satisfaction in knowing I don't have to ask anybody for anything. I work for what I get. A handicap such as mine is no excuse for not trying to get along. Of course, a word of encouragement goes a long way. I know my two children are depending on me and that keeps me hustling."

Wall St. Hits Bottom at Last And Bounces

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Turn boys, we're going the other way.

Wall Street is full of plus signs now. They finally found rock bottom and took a bounce.

We hit pretty hard. But we didn't burst into flame.

What we need now is a leader. We have finally turned the corner. We hope it's a new street and not a second lap.

A leader is a man who keeps marching straight ahead even when the parade is going the other way.

He is a man who can shoot the fleas without killing the dog.

He can tell you what to do. And your own good judgment will keep you from doing it.

Where is there such a man? Look at the list of presidential candidates and you will realize that we have a hundred leaders who are willing to give their all to their country at 6 per cent and emoluments.

That's all we wanted to know. We're safe, the captain shouted as he staggered down the stairs.

COUNTY TO FIRE PAINTERS FOR WINTER

M'Govern Demands High-Pay Men on Laboring Jobs Be Dropped Immediately

The practice of retaining union painters on the county's payroll during the winter is going to be abolished immediately, according to County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern.

During consideration of the Bureau of Buildings budget yesterday McGovern said:

"It is the concensus of opinion of this board that this system of keeping these highly paid men at $12 a day on the payroll doing laborers' work is going to stop. If there are any painters on the payroll doing anything but painting I want them off tonight.

"For what one of these men draws in the winter, three men would be able to live. During the season they flout their rules and cards in front of us and then in the winter they are hidden away on some laboring job while the little fellow who would be tickled to death to get 50 cents an hour has to go hungry. Win, lose or draw, we are going to abolish this practice."

There are 16 painters in the bridge department.

which are sold to garages. Even these casualties of wear have their seams saved for a still lower classification, the rag man.

As one of the old women was trimming a seam she remarked:

"We go the meat packers one better. They use everything but the squeal but we even save the ravelings."

Viewing the former cramped quarters where storerooms and working rooms were crowded, the bare but spacious new ones seem palatial. About 200 workers can now be employed in the newly erected building.

Although Lawrence Wolfe, the architect has been obliged fundamentally to provide the greatest amount of usable space possible he has contrived in his design an attractive façade and entrance gate.

CLOTHES NEEDED

Contributions of clothes or money to the Goodwill Industries multiply. These are not buried talents for the workers earn their livings by preparing the articles for sale and the purchasers secure necessities otherwise beyond their means.

At this moment clothes are needed as the demand has steadily increased.

Probably the most surprising department to an outside visitor is the "miscellaneous" section over which Richard Gebhardt presides with great intelligence and ingenious craftsmanship. In this department everything from outmoded gimcracks to genuine antiques may be founud.

Farmer Loses Fight To Halt Pollution

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 15.—Petition for an injunction against the Valley Camp Coal Company, Inc., with mines in Lower Burrell Township restraining it from pumping mine water into Dutchman's Run Creek, which flows across the farmlands of Matthew Herman, has been dismissed by the courts. In its opinion the court found that due to an explosion closing part of the mines it is not practical to pump the water from another point. Herman had contended the sulphur in the mine water had rendered it unfit for his cattle and was destroying vegetation.

CHILDREN LACK DUTY SENSE

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Lack of a sense of responsibility, said Mrs. Cecile Pilpel today, is what is wrong with most children today.

Mrs. Pilpel, director of the study groups of the Child Study Association of America and mother of four children and grandmother of three, went on to explain:

"It is all right to teach children to be self-reliant. It is all right to teach them initiative. But most parents are learning that these things do not develop a sense of responsibility in the children toward themselves or other people."

City parents complain to Mrs. Pilpel that their children are not nice toward others; that they "take all and give nothing."

This attitude, she said, is due to the fact that children who live in metropolitan areas rarely see the effort that goes into the production of the things they want. She explained:

"Country children see cause and effect before their very eyes."

Pure as MOUNTAIN AIR

ABOVE the timber-line! Another world. Where every breath is like a tonic. Every step a thrill . . . and every man a king. Because the air is pure.

It's purity that distinguishes the good things of life from the almost-good. And that's as true at the cigarette counter as it is 5000 feet above sea level.

Chesterfield's purity starts with tobacco . . . the ripest, finest, purest leaf that money can buy! Mild tobaccos . . . made milder still by cross-blending. Then they're wrapped in paper so pure it burns without taste or odor.

Every ingredient . . . every method used in making Chesterfields is checked by a staff of scientists. Even the air in the factories is washed and changed every 4½ minutes.

By our use of a highly scientific process which was worked out by Dr. Paul Gross, Head Chemist of our Research Department, Chesterfield reaches a state of purity unmatched, to our knowledge, by any other cigarette.

Try the air at the bottom of a mountain. Try it at the top. Try any other cigarette. Then Chesterfield. The difference is purity . . . and what purity means in milder, better taste. You'll find . . . they satisfy!

NAVY SPONSORS AIR CARRIERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Naval opposition to any attempt to limit aircraft carrying vessels at the Geneva Arms Conference was expressed today before a House committee along with additional pleas for a treaty navy.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, said he was "unalterably opposed" to any move at the arms parley to reduce America's present aircraft carrier tonnage.

He indorsed the $616,000,000 construction measure before the naval committee which would bring the navy to the limits of the London pact, but suggested it be changed to allow for additional aircraft tonnage.

Rear Admiral Frank B. Upham, chief of the Navigation Bureau, said a treaty navy was the best means of safeguarding peace.

MENU SUGGESTIONS :-: Prudence Penny Lists Economy Recipes :-: TABLE DELICACIES :-: Time Saving Hints For Housewives

BAKED HAM—12-pound ham, 1 teaspoon mustard, ½ cup brown sugar, ½ teaspoon paprika, ½ cup vinegar, 6 red apples, whole cloves.

Wash and score ham. Place in roaster fat side uppermost; bottom of pan with boiling water about 1 quart. Cover roaster and bake in a slow or 300 degree F. oven not less than 25 minutes to the pound. When about done remove the rind. Sprinkle the fat surface with mustard and paprika, add the vinegar to liquid in pan and continue cooking, basting frequently. About ½ hour before serving sprinkle fat surface with brown sugar, dot with cloves. Place the washed and cored apples around and continue baking uncovered without basting. Interior temperature of ham when done should read 158 degrees F. Serves 12 to 18. The center of the apples may be filled with a mixture of raisins and chopped nuts if desired.

* * *

GERMAN COOKIES—One cup butter, 2 cups dark brown sugar, 3 tablespoons sour cream, 1 cup molasses, 2 eggs, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 2 tablespoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon soda, 4½ cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 cup broken nuts, 1 cup chopped raisins, 1 cup chopped candied fruit peel, 3 tablespoons chopped citron.

Cream the butter and sugar. Add creamed molasses and eggs. Add rest of ingredients, chill dough. Break off bits and flatten down 3 inches apart on greased baking sheet. Bake 12 minutes in moderate oven.

ROAST BEEF PIE—2 cups diced cooked beef, ½ cup cooked peas, ½ cup cooked carrots, 2 tablespoons chopped onions, 2 tablespoons chopped celery, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup gravy or milk, 2 cups mashed potatoes, 3 tablespoons butter, melted.

Mix potatoes and butter, spread over rest of ingredients which have been mixed together, and poured into buttered baking dish. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven. Serve in dish in which baked. Other leftover meat and vegetables can be used and this makes an excellent food to serve the hungry family.

GRAPEFRUIT JELLY WITH CREAM CHEESE BALLS—2 tablespoons gelatin, ½ cup cold water, 1 cup sugar, juice 2 lemons, 1 package cream cheese, 2 dozen canned white cherries, 2 dozen filberts, mayonnaise, lettuce.

Soak the gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes. Cook the sugar and juice drained from the grapefruit until the sugar is dissolved. Add the lemon juice and gelatin. Strain. Add grapefruit segments. Fill a cold wet ring mold half full with the grapefruit jelly mixture. Let stand in refrigerator until it begins to thicken.

Form the cheese into small balls about one inch in diameter. When the jelly in the mold has begun to set arrange these balls of cheese at regular intervals in the mold. Add the rest of the gelatin mixture and chill until perfectly stiff. When ready to use unmold on a bed of lettuce. Pit the cherries and stuff with blanched nut meats. Fill the center of the grapefruit mold with the cherries. Garnish with mayonnaise. This quantity will serve six to eight people.

CORN BREAD OR CORN MUFFINS—Mix and sift 1 cup cornmeal, 1 cup flour, ½ teaspoon soda, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar. Beat 1 egg slightly and add it to 1¼ cups sour milk or buttermilk, and 3 tablespoons of fat. Combine mixtures and beat well. Pour into buttered sheet pan or muffin tins and bake in a 400 degree oven for 25 minutes.

DUCHESS SOUP—One quart milk, 1 slice onion, 1 tablespoon flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoonsful grated American cheese, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 egg yolks, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Scald milk in double boiler with the onion. Cream butter and blend in flour to form a smooth paste. Add to beaten egg yolks. Add a little hot milk to the egg mixture, stirring carefully to prevent lumps forming. Return to double boiler and add the grated cheese and seasoning. Remove the onion slice. Heat slowly until cheese is melted. Serve immediately, using 1 teaspoon chopped parsley added to each bowl of soup for a garnish.

Doctor Advocates Greater Use of Natural Sweets

Famed food authority recommends honey as an agreeable and valuable addition to the diet.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Formerly Health Commissioner, New York City.
United States Senator from New York.

One of my readers living in Minnesota has asked for an article about honey. He regards it as a healthful food, equally good for adults and children, and wants to know if I agree with him. I certainly do agree with him. I applaud every good word for honey.

It is really amazing to me that more use is not made of the natural sweets. Nature prepared these for the enjoyment and nourishment of her children. There is hardly a human being who does not relish sweets, and many of the lower animals will fight to get them.

Honey is chief of the natural sweets. It is a concentrated nectar of the gods. In every pound of clover honey is imprisoned the sugar from 60,000 blossoms. The sweetness and perfume of the flowers are transformed into a delicious food, wholesome, nutritious and health producing. To him who eats of this delicacy is imported the energy, the "bee-power," of a million journeys between hive and bloom.

The sugar food in honey is different from the cane and beet product. It belongs to a group which includes dextrose, levulose, glucose and fructose. It is not the same as sucrose, cane sugar. It is known technically as "invert" sugar and is immediately available for use by the body.

Cane sugar is far more difficult to digest. Indeed, in concentrated form it may actually be harmful, interfering with digestion.

On the other hand, honey is readily accepted and is better every day, especially for one who has weak digestive powers.

Before cane sugar can be utilized it must be converted, by the chemistry of the body, into glucose. As you see, the use of honey saves all this effort. It is ready for immediate absorption by the blood. In its natural state, without processing or manufacture, it is in perfect form for human consumption and speedy digestion.

The children are eager for sweets. What can be better than a slice of bread and butter, spread with delicious honey? That makes a combination hard to beat. Taken with a glass of milk, it makes an almost perfect meal.

For adults, honey is an agreeable addition to biscuits or hot cakes. It makes a real part of the meal and not merely an appealing addition.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

What Should Girl Do When Boy Friend Is 'Broke?'

Should Romeo step aside when he's broke and can't take Juliet out, and let her go places with other gents whose pockets are not so flat?

G. M. is troubled by this question. He loves a little girl who claims she loves him and if he just had the tack the sky would be the limit when it came to entertaining her. But just now he's pretty close to the bread line so dinners and dances and big time shows are out. All he can give her is a walk in the moonlight.

And though the little girl loves him, she also loves fun. Is she selfish and disloyal when she wants to find it with someone else? Is he selfish because he doesn't want her to?

What do you think, Bill—Susie?

LIKES GOOD TIMES

"Dear Sally:

"My problem will probably seem silly to you, but it is really tragic to me and is making me very unhappy. I hope you can help me.

"I've been going with a girl for two years. For the last eight months I have been seeing her every day. I love her, and I cannot give her up. She loves me, too, I am sure of that. Now, here is where the problem comes in:

"I am unemployed just now and unable to take her out. She is a very popular girl and has a good many chances to go to dances, parties, and so forth, with other boys. So far she hasn't gone, but she likes good times, for which I don't blame her, and she wants to go.

"She says it won't make any difference to her love for me if she does, but I can't let her go. I would be positively wretched if she went out with anyone else. I know it is hard on her to stay in, but I won't always be down and out, and I will make it up to her for all the time she has wasted on me.

SYMPATHIZES WITH HER

"Am I being selfish? Should I step aside when she wants to go out, and then come back the next evening and act as if nothing had happened? I can't do that yet, but if she does go, I'll be right back. It doesn't sound logical, I know, but I am that way about her.

"What would you do if you were me? Would you just take the leavings as it were or would you cast off and be miserable? I can see her side of it, and sympathize with her, but it's hard on me, G. M."

That's a good question, isn't it, sort? You love her. You want her to have the fun she loves, and yet it's pretty tough on your feelings to think that she's willing to grab that fun sometimes at the expense of your pain.

But after all, why not? She is bound to see other boys, work with other boys, talk and dance with other boys now and then all her life, even if you do love each other. And because now her young feet long to tap to a dance tune that isn't any sign she cares less for you. Plainly, she is not trying to cheat or "two-time" you the double cross.

And the chances are that by being generous by showing that you have faith enough in her love and loyalty to believe that she can step occasionally with someone else and still love you, you will stack up better with her than if you try to hold her by nagging or sulking or forbidding her to go out.

LOYALTY QUESTION

So let it SHINE, and then go out and get that new job so you won't have to take any back seats.

But maybe if I do let her go with these other fellows she won't stay loyal to me— Is that what you're saying, son?

Well, if she's that kind of a girl, isn't it well to know it right now and get the hurt of it over. And if she isn't that kind of a girl—if she'll stick by you regardless—doesn't she deserve all the fun she can get?

That's my answer to G. M., but maybe it isn't yours.

Maybe you think that the girl friend should be satisfied with a stroll under the arc lights and an ice cream cone for excitement.

Maybe you think she is being selfish and unfair to long for the bright lights when G. M. can't give 'em to her.

So come on! Let's have your slant!

By FAY KING

One hundred thousand dollars is a lot of money. Yet that is what one city's public library pays annually to clean, repair and rebind books.

If the borrowers were just a little more thoughtful and careful of books much of that sum could be expended for new books instead of mending.

Folding a clean piece of wrapping paper around the covers will keep them clean.

A bit of string or paper for a place marker will save turning down the pages, which soon break at the fold.

Have your handkerchief in hand to brush away crumbs and ashes that fall if you nibble or smoke while reading.

Don't mark books.

Never tear anything from them.

Treat a borrowed book better than your own.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Don't Delay Treatment Of Colds

The other day I attended a meeting at which the principal speaker was unable to complete his address because of a bad cold. In the audience several were coughing and sneezing. I was sure that it would not be long before many others in the audience would be suffering from colds.

Dr. Copeland

I say this because the common cold is an infectious disease, a "catching" disease. It is easily transmitted from one person to another by coughing and sneezing, and colds differ from other infectious diseases, in that one attack does not protect from future attacks.

Science has not yet discovered the cause of the common cold. It is believed to be due to a "filterable virus." The germ comes under this classification because it is so small it is not visible under a microscope. Though we do not know the exact cause, many contributing factors are recognized as promoting colds.

When a person is in a run-down condition he is more susceptible to a cold. Scientists consider this is due to lowered resistance to infection. Excessive fatigue, lack of sleep, undue exposure to cold weather or dampness and lack of proper food are all factors that lead to lowered resistance.

Some suffer more than others from colds. Usually these persons are susceptible to colds because of some disturbance in the nose or throat. Nasal deformities, enlarged and diseased tonsils, adenoids and sinusitis are frequent complaints of these sufferers.

The first thing to do when you have a cold is to take your temperature. If it is above 99 degrees go to bed after a hot bath.

It is best to consult with your physician if the trouble does not yield at once. Many colds that are neglected develope complications, such as pleurisy and pneumonia. There are many patent remedies and home cures for a cold. They may relieve the discomfort, but rarely hasten the cure. Contrary to a common belief, whisky has doubtful value as a curative agent in acute colds.

Care of the diet is important in the prevention of colds. The daily menu should contain adequate amounts of milk, green vegetables and citrus fruits. Drink at least eight glasses of water daily. A daily bowel evacuation is important. Sleep at least eight hours every day. These precautions help you to build up a resistance to colds.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Restrains an Impulse to 'Storm' at Katherine

I clenched my fists into the folds of my gown that neither Katherine nor Lillian should guess the unforgivable storm of resentment against Katherine which was shaking me. I was utterly bewildered at my strange reaction to Katherine's care of my baby. I was thoroughly ashamed of it as well, but when I saw her rush to the bedside as Faith gave the tiny, natural wail for which we were both waiting I had all I could do to keep from screaming out at her not to touch my child.

Fortunately, the training of a lifetime held, and though my palms felt as if my finger nails had pierced them I was able to hold myself rigidly silent as Katherine bent over my baby and crooned soothingly to her in the fashion of mothers the world over. "There, there little love!" Her voice held the cello note, and my baby ceased wailing and closed her eyes again. Katherine bent over her anxiously and then straightened herself and looked over at me with such relief and joy in her eyes that I was almost torn in two between loving gratitude for what she had done and a wild, unreasoning resentment because she had dared to do it.

All my judgment, and every instinct of common decency and fair play I possessed clamored that Katherine had acted with sanity and wisdom and was perfectly justified in her course. A trained nurse second to none in her skill and judgment and as devoted to my children as any mother could have been, my brain told me that my sick baby was far safer in her hands than in mine and that until there was grave danger warranting a parent's summons my presence would only have hampered her.

But my heart gave the direct lie to my brain. She had no right, I told myself fiercely, to keep the knowledge of my baby's illness from me and I bit my under lip until I winced with the pain to keep from flinging at her all the poisonous rancor which was possessing me.

Katherine was so absorbed in the baby that except for that one involuntary fleeting glance of relief I do not think she had given either Lillian or me a look since we came into the room. If she had conveniently looked at me she would have known my thoughts in an instant, for so shaken was I by this unworthy emotion that I could not school my face to the composure which is always Lillian's.

But Lillian was wiser, and she gave a warning pinch, muttering, "Don't give yourself away." As always Lillian had been able to save me from myself. I was sure that nothing of my resentment against Katherine showed in the face I turned to her. "Forgive me, Madge," Katherine said, surprisingly, and I wondered panic-stricken if her keen perception had sensed my feeling.

I felt as if that loving look were thawing the ice-pack around my heart, and my hurried answer, "Forgive you! for what, pray?" was not wholly perfunctory.

"Because I didn't tell you about the darling's illness," she said, "but do believe me I had no thought of anything like this, otherwise I should have told you when I first noticed she was not quite herself. She's been feverish and fretful all night, but I am conceited enough to believe that no one could have foreseen this convulsion. If I had dreamed of such an outcome I should have summoned you promptly on her first waking. But I know what this thing means and I did so want you to be able to go on with it undisturbed. But, of course, when I saw this convulsion coming on I sent after you as soon as I could spare Katie. You can't stop for anything you know, when one of these things breezes in until you have conquered it."

"Katie—was—with—you—" I said and had difficulty in recognizing my own choking voice. I caught Lillian's warning pinch again and saw the surprise quickly veiled in Katherine's eyes.

"Oh yes," she said. "Katie has been with me all night. Faith wakened fretful and feverish, just after I took on the job of watchful waiter outside. While the little sweetheart didn't seem sick enough to warrant my calling you yet I didn't want to leave her alone a single second."

So even my little maid had been closer to my little baby than I had been! My smoldering anger threatened to burst into flame and unconsciously Katherine applied the match. "Did you get enough of the act done so that you could finish it?" she asked ironically.

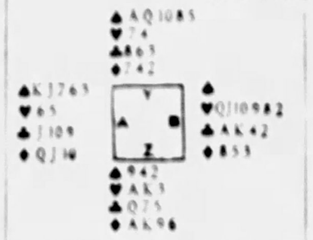
Contract Bridge -:- OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Can Y Make 4 Spades?

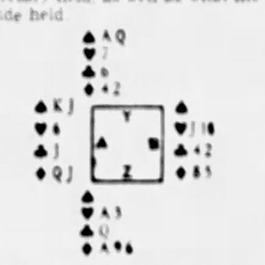


Bidding on the hands above went: Z, 1-No Trump; A, Pass; Y, 2-Spades; B, 3-Hearts; Z, 3-No Trumps; A, Pass; Y, 4-Spades; B and Z, Pass; A double.

B made an opening lead of his king of clubs. Not wishing to make good a club in dummy, B shifted to his queen of hearts. The trick was won in dummy. The question is: Can Y go game against any defense now open to A-B?

Of course. Z's 9 of spades was led and allowed to take the double finesse with success. Another trump was led and won with Y's 8. To lead trumps again, dummy was entered by means of the king of diamonds. A played the 10. Z's last trump was led; the trick was won with Y's 10, over A's 7. Y held in spades the A-Q over A's K-J, and must lose one spade trick if he again led that suit. B had discarded the 2 and 8 of hearts, marking A with the missing 6. B has also let go the 9 of hearts, evidently still giving him possession of the J-10.

Y took account of stock. B's opening lead of the king of clubs placed the ace in his hand. A had played the 9 to the first trick, but he must still have one more club at least. Had B held in clubs A-K-J-10-4-2 he would have risked showing that suit. In case A had held only two clubs he could trump the third round of that suit if B led it, which would be just too bad. However, a return lead of clubs by Y seemed the best chance for game, and he tried it. B won the trick, and A played his 10. The fact that A had not echoed in clubs gave Y the following picture of what each adversary held, as well as what his side held:



As no player had false-carded, Y's picture of what each held was perfect. It did not make the least difference what B led. Nothing could prevent what happened. B led his top heart, Z won with the ace. Dummy and A were stripped of clubs, by laying down dummy's queen. Z's ace of diamonds took the next trick, and then A was given the third and last trick for his side with another diamond lead. Having left only his two trumps, A had to lead spades, giving Y the last two tricks and his doubled contract.

Household Hints

Colored handkerchiefs should be soaked in cold water containing a little salt before they are washed, to prevent fading.

If a piece of white oilcloth is laid down at the bottom of a dark stairway or in a dark corner it will prevent accidents.

When filling a pepper pot or salt shaker, use as a funnel an envelope with one corner torn off. This will make the job easier and prevent waste.

Silk stockings should be washed and rinsed in tepid water.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Pronouncing Canapes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly give me the correct pronunciation of the word "canapes"? A. D.

This pleasant word divides itself into three syllables, and no syllable is accented. Can-a-pays.

Initialing the Silver

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would appreciate your telling me which initial a girl should have on her linens when getting married. Should she have her own initial, or the one that she is going to take? MRS. N.

There is much discussion about that these days, the conventionally-minded girls preferring the traditional way of marking their linen and their silver (that is, with the initial of their maiden name) and the more "modern" one preferring the initials of their married names. I strongly recommend the former method. It is interesting, too, to see that most of the conservative and famous linen houses and silversmiths always suggest the use of the maiden name initials.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Give your hair the air! Make that one of your beauty slogans. Before saying prayers at night, ruffle up the old glory mop with the fingers. Pummel the scalp, give scalp and hair ventilation. Bridge players who keep on their bonnet the whole afternoon are giving their hair a dirty deal, since the felt chapeau creates perspiration which distributes upon the surface of the scalp salty deposits, which shout a "come on" to the sebaceous glands to exude their oily substances. Excessively oily hair is oftimes the result of lack of scalp hair.

When the beauty-quester tries out the egg shampoo (recommended as a cleansing agent for hair that has been overbleached) and fails, it is because she is stingy with the eggs. The ordinary bobbed head calls for six eggs. Beat slightly, adding a tablespoonful of cold water. Spray the hair, rub in half the amount of the eggs, rinse, friction in the rest, spray again. Unless the eggs foam up like a rich soap suds, the shampoo will not be satisfactory. Takes elbow grease. Lots of it.

Some women are kind to everybody but themselves. They are the ones who pick up wrinkles early and get whispy-looking. Their loyalty to work and worry and their too-ardent respect for the word Duty drive them day and night. Everyone needs a little playtime now and then — diversions, spoofing, laughter, off hours. It is the jolly, old-shoe woman who doesn't take life too seriously who prances round until she is 100 and who wards off the evidence of birthdays with skill.

It has been a season of hat joys and hat vexations. Now that the little fried-egg affairs are supplemented with all manner of chic chapeaux, the sisterhood draws a sigh and selects what she pleases. Which isn't always what it should be, as one concluded upon catching sight of the long, lean-faced woman who somehow or other always manages to acquire a long, lean hat, as also certain ones of the fat-faced contingent pounce upon little hats that add to the general effect of curves and bumpses. The hat, my hearties, is the most important item of the sartorial assemble. It has more to do with appearance than frocks, by a long shot.

Brushing the hair helps to keep it clean, well-groomed looking, but as an inspiration to the growth it doesn't perform very successfully. Friction of the scalp for three minutes will do more for the health of the glorious crest than half an hour of stroking with the brush. A warming tonic tones the fibers, stirs up the circulatory mechanism.

Events leading up to the recent disturbances in Hawaii will be dramatized. The basis of the news re-enactment will be the report of Rear-Admiral Yates Stirling, Commandment at Pearl Harbor, on the Massie case. A scene will be heard during which Thalia Massie, the wife of the young naval officer gives her court testimony.

Another news dramatization will be concerned with the Jackson Day dinner of the Democratic Party, at which three former standard bearers, James M. Cox, John W. Davis and Alfred E. Smith, united in an attack upon the present administration, indicating that the main planks of the party's platform for the impending election will be concerned with the Hoover regime's weaknesses.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

OFFICIAL WORD from the Pepsodent Company advises us that "there is absolutely no foundation for the statement that Amos 'n' Andy may leave the air."

This contradicts and settles definitely a rumor that the popular comedians would leave the air in February for a three month rest.

* * *

IF YOU ASKED us what one thing a studio visitor would like to do above all else, we would have to confess that the world is full of people who yearn to hear what their voices sound like over the radio. . . . It wouldn't surprise us, from the number of inquiries we receive daily, to see one of these shooting gallery promoters some day start a racket of charging the inquisitive public 25 cents or so for the privilege of speaking through a microphone and hearing the voice register over a set of headphones. . . . It's funny, too, the misconceptions studio visitors have about radio . . . for instance, that Amos 'n' Andy have somebody else writing their material; that Cheerio is on President Hoover's payroll; that the Sponsor of Sacred Songs is the wife of a Pittsburgh steel manufacturer; that radio entertainers make as much money as movie stars; that studios are padded with gymnasium mattresses for acoustical effects; that intense rivalry exists between the staffs of local stations; that "registering" implies that their homes will be flooded with advertising mail; that announcers and artists are loath to divulge information; that local stars have all attained the throne through "pull."

That hill-billy boys come into the studios in ragged clothes (and what snappy dressers they are); that radio people all talk technical language; that all radio singers with lovely voices are fat and homely; that Glenn Riggs of KDKA and Tom Riggs of "Riggs and Moke" are brothers, or at least second cousins; that musicians with the oom-pah horn receive some sort of extra compensation for base tone effects.

That Seth Parker and Mayor Matt Thompkins are the same people; that all announcers carry watches; that electrical transcriptions are something more than just phonograph records; that entertainers must "gum-shoe" about the studio to prevent unnecessary noises; that a radio editor spends most of his day at the loudspeaker (if he did this column would never reach the printer).

What orchestra leader has been on the air the longest?—G. F., Carnegie Building.

Answer—Vincent Lopez, who has broadcast almost daily since first facing a microphone on February 26, 1922.

Ann Leaf, organist, and Ben Alley, West Virginia tenor, are to have an afternoon spot on CBS soon. . . .

Lawrence Tibbett must give up his Firestone appearance next Monday night to do "Peter Ibbetson" at the Metropolitan. . . .

Paul Althouse and eight other vocalists are to appear with Leopold Stokowski on the Philco Symphony concert tomorrow night at 8:15 on WJAS. . . .

Unless a change is made in Paul Whiteman's booking, local people aspiring to fame in his "talent hunt" will have to try out when he plays Cleveland, the week of January 23.

'The Globe Trotter' Four Times a Day

Shipwrecks and revolutions, airplane crashes and peace pacts—whatever the latest news, "The Globe Trotter" presents it four times a day over WCAE, "Voice of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph"—at 9:30 in the morning, 12:15, 2:30 and 6:30. Flashes from all parts of the world through the unequaled Hearst news services are received in the news studio of WCAE all day long and given to the radio audience in an intelligent, comprehensive manner.

The Sun-Telegraph Night Club of the Air on WCAE every night at 11 o'clock, except Sunday, frequently presents guest artists of national reputation, and always provides a good dance program.

TARTAN STAR MAY APPROACH HYATT

LOU JAGNOW, the Jackson (Mich.) sophomore at Carnegie Tech, who has been providing thrill after thrill for the large crowds flocking to the Tartan gymnasium since the Skibo floormen recently struck a winning stride, and who is now out of the game nursing a torn back muscle, is no new comer to basketball fame. Unlike Capt. Jimmy Leonard, Red Fergus and Ed Stentz, who had no court reputations at all when they entered Carnegie, Jagnow was one of the most famous prep school players in the country in his high school days.

Lou Jagnow

Playing in the national high school tournament, which used to be sponsored annually by the University of Chicago, Jagnow was named on the all-tournament team in 1929, though Jackson High finished no better than fourth. He was further honored by being named captain of the mythical aggregation.

When Carnegie invaded the South to open the current campaign, the coaches of the teams met by the Plaid were unanimous in declaring Lou the greatest player they had ever seen.

THE SECRET OF Jagnow's brilliant ball-handling, which has astounded spectators, officials and rival players, lies in his unusually large hands. Despite the fact that he is not an exceptionally husky youth, his hands are as large as those boasted by Leonard Schnupp, gigantic tackle on Carnegie football teams a few years ago.

With Charles Hyatt the standard for the measurement of all college players in this district, Jagnow has a tough task in earning a rating comparable with that of the brilliant Chipper. But Lou's work so far has been as sensational as was that of Hyatt in the latter's sophomore year at Pitt, and Carnegie partisans are confident that before his college days are completed Jagnow will be regarded as ranking not far below the former Panther star.

LOCAL BASKETBALL FANS who believe Marty Reiter, Duquesne University's sophomore flash, is destined to reach the heights of college stardom, are backed up in that opinion by Dave Kerr, a national authority after 20 years as a leading player and manager.

Kerr, spending the winter in Pittsburgh, watched the Dukes in several workouts and was greatly impressed by the work of Reiter. He pronounces the former Fifth Avenue High boy one of the best young college players he ever saw and predicts great things for him under the tutelage of Chick Davies.

IN A DAY of bread lines and jobless armies it's almost like inhaling a fairy tale to read that Babe Ruth has indignantly spurned an offer of $70,000 for playing ball during a season of six months. That would mean about $455 per game, or something like $4.33 per minute for Ruth's playing time, not to mention the fact that during half of the six-month period the Yankees will be on the road and the Babe's expenses will be paid in full. The average citizen isn't likely to become excited over Ruth's salary wrangle, nor to worry very much as to which side will eventually win the argument. His only reaction probably will be a lifting of the eyebrows and a query as to whether, if they are able to pay salaries of that size, it might not be possible for the magnates to reduce the admission and reserved seat prices and still have a nice profit. In the end, no doubt, after a maximum of publicity, Ruth will get what he asks—$80,000 for one year, $140,000 for two years, or $180,000 for three years. They'll have to get him to sign for the effect it will have on the other holdouts, for the latter will be governed by Ruth's leadership, as usual, and whatever he does they'll be ready to follow suit.

Lou Gehrig

EVIDENTLY, NOT ALL of the baseball stars have suffered salary cuts. It is learned that terms with the Yankees have been accepted by not only Pitcher Vernon Gomez, but also by First Baseman Lou Gehrig, making the matter of contract signing in each case a mere formality.

An increase for Gomez had been expected. He is young and still advancing and had a great season in 1931. But Gehrig was already one of the highest-salaried players in the business, was a holdout last spring, and must have been treated pretty generously this time to be swung into line so quickly.

INDICATIONS THAT GEHRIG escaped a slash or was reduced only slightly are not likely to make Bill Terry, holdout first sacker of the Giants, more satisfied with his lot or more willing to accept the 40 per cent cut he says he has been asked to take.

Though many baseball fans fail to see where he gets the idea, Terry appears to rate himself on a par with Gehrig and bases his own salary demands on the sum that Lou pulls down. Last year he declared he would not sign until he received "just as much money as the guy across the bridge."

THE FIGHT CARD for tonight presents a couple of heavyweight bouts of more than ordinary interest, with King Levinsky meeting Pauline Uzcudun for 10 rounds in Chicago, and Tommy Loughran taking on Steve Hamas, former Penn State football player, for the same distance in New York. The Chicago affair will show whether Levinsky's recent surprising victory over Tommy Loughran was due to a vast improvement on his own part or to a loss of form on the part of Loughran. They don't come any tougher than Pauline—even Ernie Schaaf declined a match with him for this month in New York—and the Kingfish will have to be good to escape a roughing up.

WHILE LEVINSKY IS being tested, Loughran will be endeavoring to prove that his defeat at the hands of the same fighter resulted from only a temporary off-spell and that he is not yet too old or ring-worn to cope with the tough youngsters of the big division.

Hamas would have no business in the ring with a normal Loughran. Tommy at his best, would be entirely too fast, smart and clever for him and would jab him dizzy. It is hard to understand why Steve's manager ever consented to such a match unless he feels pretty sure that Loughran is done. Most fans are far from being so thoroughly convinced on that point.

BOXING MEN ARE divided as to the chance Hamas or any other former college football player has for success in the fight game. Lou Brown, who managed one of them in the person of Add Warren, says it's a hopeless undertaking.

He mentions Monte Munn, Les Mariner, Bulls Montgomery, Tiny Roebuck, George Trafton, Bill Middlekauff, Allie Wolff, Armand Emanuel, Tex Hamar, Father Lumpkin, Yustin Strutle, Milton Hutner and others in support of his argument.

Steve Hamas

"A COLLEGIAN IS too old, at 22 to 25, when he enters the ring," Brown contends. "A boxer must grow up with the game, as 95 per cent of the great ones have done. Perfect co-ordination is required in a successful boxer. In football a young man develops certain muscles to the exclusion of others. His muscles are too much set. Besides, the type of competition is different. In football, the young fellow has 10 other players with him to bear the shock, and having comrades is a big help in any activity, be it war, sport or business. In boxing, however, a man is strictly on his own. As Jack Starkey aptly put it, the ring is the loneliest place in the world even if you have 100,000 friends within hailing distance. The moral and physical support that a football player gets from the rest of the team is lacking. If a football player is tired or hurt, he can be relieved until he has recovered. But there is no such relief for a boxer. He must go on to the end. He must stay in there and take it. Believe me, there is a big difference."

By CARL W. SHATTO

The Yellow Jackets will have to stage another uphill climb to gain the International Hockey League championship playoffs.

True, the local puckmen have not yet given themselves the great handicap that they had to overcome to get into the post-season series last season, but the barrier is sufficiently high to warrant some worry on the part of Coach Charley Reid and his warriors as the half-way mark in the campaign nears.

REID DISAPPOINTED

The Jackets built up, rather than cut into the barrier as they bowed in defeat, 5 to 2, to the Detroit Olympics at Duquesne Garden last night. From the fans' viewpoint, the game was something of a success, for it produced fast, open hockey from going to going, but from the viewpoint of Coach Reid and his skaters it was a dismal disappointment for the invaders outplayed the locals rather decisively in piling up their margin of victory.

The triumph extended Detroit's success string to seven successive games. The defeat was the fourth in seven starts for Pittsburgh, and it was rather disconcerting because Doc Romnes and Capt. Tory Gregg, star wings out for one and two weeks, respectively, with injuries, were back in the lineup.

The Olympics found the Pittsburgh defense a stonewall from defense point to defense point, but they enjoyed great success in engineering attacks down the outside lanes and cutting in from the boards. All Detroit goals were scored on plays of this variety.

VICTORS LEAD EARLY

The Olympics scored two goals in the first period, two in the second and one in the third stanza. At one time, early in the second period, they were leading the Residmen by a 4-0 count.

Herberts swept in from the side boards after receiving a pass from Evans to beat Goalie Cox for the first tally, at 8:25 in the first period. McCabe, not more than a foot inside the blue line, shot through a mass of players to give Detroit a 2-0 lead as the first period ended.

Steele and Evans scored on lone dashes at 7:35 and 7:50, respectively, in the second stanza. These tallies came in such rapid succession that the fans were moved to give Goalie Cox a Hoboken cheer.

Joe Matte rushed from his defense point to bag the first Pittsburgh tally at 9:35 in the middle stanza. He rushed down the right lane with such speed that the Olympic defense men were caught flatfooted, and cut in on top of Goalie Venne before the visiting guards could turn around to block his path.

GREGG SCORES

Newman converted a neat pass from Gagne into the final Detroit tally at 3:55 in the third period, and Gregg put a finish to the scoring when he converted after receiving a perfect pass from Whitey Fields at the Detroit goal mouth. The lineup:

Pittsburgh		Detroit
Clark	G	Venne
Romnes	D	Evans
Matte	D	Fields
Silver	C	Herberts
Gagne	W	McCabe
Gregg	W	Steele

Scores by periods:

Pittsburgh	0	0	2
Detroit	2	2	1

Goals—First period, Herberts, Detroit, unassisted; Second period, Newman, Detroit, Herberts, Detroit; Matte, Pittsburgh, Gagne and Silver; Steele, Detroit, unassisted; Evans, Detroit, unassisted; Third period, Gagne, Pittsburgh, unassisted; Gregg, Detroit, Newman and Fields. Referee—Bobby Boucher. Umpire—Barton. Time—Five periods of 20 minutes each.

Chick Davies On the Air Tonight

Chick Davies, coach of the Duquesne University basketball team, will be interviewed by Harry Keck, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, over Station WCAE at 6:30 o'clock tonight.

Chick Davies

Chick is very much in the limelight as a result of his team's 28-21 victory over Pitt in the first floor test in the history of these two local institutions.

Davies will confine his talk to basketball. Perhaps he will reveal the secret of his team's fine play against the Panthers.

This run was made to fetch the sacred fire of the sacrifices which had been defiled by the invading Persians in the year 480 B. C. The great runner covered 1,006 stadia (about 125 miles) on foot before dark and dropped dead on his return to Plataea. VIOLETS PLAY PITT PASSERS TOMORROW

GAMES TONIGHT

N. Y. U. vs. Carnegie Tech at Tech gym.
Youngstown Y vs. Westminster at New Wilmington.
Waynesburg vs. St. Vincent at Latrobe.
Broaddus vs. D and E. at Elkins.
Morris Harvey at Parkersburg.
Thiel vs. Allegheny at Meadville.
California Teachers at Lock Haven.

By JESS CARVER

Defeated only by Columbia in a half dozen starts to date, New York University's varsity basketball team opens a two-night stand here by opposing Carnegie Tech in the Skibo gymnasium this evening. Tomorrow the Violets play Pitt at the Stadium.

The Violets are formidable enough to cause the Tartans a peck of trouble indeed, the Skibos are putting their six-game win streak in jeopardy in tonight's tussle. Always up among the court leaders of the East, the New Yorkers this year have a well-balanced squad and are possessed of some sparkling individual performers. Sugar Hugret, who plays an end on the football team, is one of the sparklers. Linz, a sharpshooting forward; Lefft, a rangy center, and Anderson and Potter, the guards, are others.

JAGNOW ON BENCH

Lou Jagnow, Tech's ace forward, who suffered a back injury in the Temple game, will ride the bench tonight, his place in the starting lineup being taken by Red "Three Point" Silverman, who gets the name of Three Point from two sources. One, he usually tallied three points in a game and too, he points at the steak platter three times at each meal.

Otherwise, the Tartan lineup will go as usual.

Dr. Red Carlson, who remains as smiling and genial as ever, despite the loss to the Dukes, has ordered his players to lay off for the rest of the week. Yesterday he took your correspondent for a ride in his big chug-chug, and where do you think he went? Maryview! No foolin'! It was not, the good Doctor wishes all to understand, a hunt for players, either.

Later in the day, Carlson took charge of a new group of varsity candidates. These newcomers included Rip Collins and Jim MacMurdo, of the football team, big, powerful fellows. The Doctor has a new idea for an offense . . he plans to call it a "walking offense," which he thinks the big boys can handle. He's serious about it, too.

TO TRY BIG BOYS

"I'm not inferring," he said, "that we have been getting kicked and slugged around because our players are mostly small fellows. Everything is lovely. We hope we can be as graceful losers as we were winners . . . it looks like we'll have to be. But I'm going to try some of these big boys, and if they can go, maybe we'll have something new to show the boys."

There is no preliminary struggle listed for the Tech-New York University game this evening, which will get under way at 8:15 o'clock. Leo Mackey and Nate Lippe, the latter head coach of athletics at Aliquippa, will officiate. The probable starting lineup follows:

Tech.		New York U.
Smith	F	Hugret
Silverman	F	Linz
Neely	C	Lefft
Fergus	G	Anderson
Lenhart	G	Potter

RUTH, RUPPERT HOLD CONFAB

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(INS)—Babe Ruth and Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, are scheduled for a conference over the home run hitter's new contract at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Ruth yesterday received his contract for 1932 calling for a one-year period and a salary of $70,000, a reduction of $10,000 from his former contract. The Babe refused to sign and today's meeting is expected to be another in a long series of verbal battles before an agreement is reached.

Ed Barrow, secretary of the club, said he did not believe anything definite would come of today's conference.

BIG FIELD INVITED

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 15.—(AP)—More than 100 cross-country runners will be invited to the fourth annual West Virginia University indoor track and field games, Saturday, February 13, it was announced today. Teams from high schools and preparatory schools of the tri-state district also will be invited to participate.

TARTAN BOXERS SET FOR W. VA.

After several months of practice and a steady series of elimination bouts, Coach Ernie Sesto, of the Carnegie Tech boxing team, has selected his lineup for the opening match of the season, which will send the Tartans against West Virginia tomorrow night in Tech Gymnasium.

Sesto was hampered last year because he was forced to cancel several bouts in each match because of the scarcity of men, but the Plaid will have a full team of seven men, as called for by the intercollegiate rules, to oppose the Mountaineers.

Jacques Croissant, the football player, has filled the void caused by the lack of a capable heavyweight, and the other position will be filled by the following boys: 175 pounds, Tom Waldron; 160 pounds, Jeff Burke; 145 pounds, Henry Carr; 135 pounds, Fraser Hellegers; 125 pounds, Ralph Atlas; 115 pounds, Royal Wertz.

Wertz, Atlas and Burke were members of last year's freshman team. The only member of last year's varsity squad to hold his position is Carr, and he was incligible for the important matches of last season.

Waldron and Burke are the stars of the team, as they have had plenty of experience in amateur rings even before their college days. Burke will be pitted against Latham, the ace of the Mountaineer club.

Carnegie Tech's basketball game with New York University tonight will be broadcast through Station WWSW by Jack Keough, sports announcer of Station WCAE, assisted by Jess Carver, of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph staff. The broadcast begins at 8:15.

Bressler, Luque To Be Released

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(INS)—The ax loomed today for two Brooklyn baseball veterans, outfielder Rube Bressler and Pitcher Adolfe Luque. When the Brooklyn contracts were mailed yesterday, documents were not sent to this pair. They probably will be released unless a righthanded hitting outfielder and a pitcher are obtained by the club in trades.

W. P. I. A. L. DEADLOCKS TO BE BROKEN

CONNELLEY FIVE RISKS HOLD ON FIRST PLACE

By JULIUS LEVIN

Deadlocks for first places in the various basketball sections of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League will be broken tonight when the leaders oppose each other in the feature attractions on the schedule.

The Connelley Trade School risks its hold on first place in the Section I race of the City League by engaging the highly-touted Taylor Allderdice quintet on the Connelley floor.

Johnny Irwin Squirrel Hill passers have been coming along in fine style and they will be eager to check the three-game winning streak of Dickson's quintet. Fifth Avenue, coached by Chester Briggs, goes after its third straight triumph at the expense of Peabody at Peabody. Westinghouse meets South in the other Section I tussle.

Allegheny, leader in Section II as a result of a one-sided victory scored over Langley last Tuesday, will be out to strengthen its advantage by opposing Allegheny Vocational on the latter's court. Perry plays at Carrick and Langley at South Hills in the other Section II frays.

ATTRACTIVE GAMES

The W. P. I. A. L. program offers its supporters one of the most attractive schedules of the early-season contests.

Beaver and Ambridge clash at Ambridge in a Section IV contest that should prove a thriller from start to finish. Jim Baker's Beaver quintet is setting the pace at present, but the leaders will find Moe Rubenstein's combine a tough hurdle.

A tie for first place in Section V is the prize to be given the winner of the South Brownsville-Charleroi embroglio at Charleroi. The two teams are tied at present with Monessen, which team engages Monongahela tonight. Steve Stepanian's Magic City five is one of the favorites to win the title in this section and cannot afford to drop tonight's verdict.

With Homestead not scheduled for league competition, Dick Toline's Munhall quintet has a chance to step into first place in Section VII by defeating George Woodman's Clairton passers at Munhall.

BRADDOCK IN TEST

A similar situation exists in Section VIII, where Ham Hudson's Braddock quintet opposes Turtle Creek at Braddock. A victory for Braddock will give the Hudson machine the top position, as Rankin is idle. Braddock defeated Scott High last week and should have no trouble adding Foxy Miller's club to its list of victims.

A "natural" is listed for the followers of Section X as Latrobe invades Uniontown to oppose Pop Everhart's five. The two teams are tied for first place, each showing two victories in as many starts.

German and North Union, involved with South Union in a three-way deadlock for the lead in section XIII, clash in the feature attraction in this division, while Oakdale and McDonald lock horns in Section XIV. The winning team moves into first place.

Johnny Coleman's East Pittsburgh passers will be out to make it three in a row by clashing with Glassport, likewise undefeated, in a Section XVII headliner.

In a lone W. P. I. A. L. contest yesterday, Aliquippa walloped Monaca, 47 to 11. Jeannette beat Mt. Pleasant, Wilkinsburg topped W. P. I. D., and Homestead nosed out Rankin High, 20-19, in non-league affrays.

Eddie Kapphan, Pittsburgh's newest boxing promoter, announces he will be ready to open his indoor arena, not far from the downtown section, two weeks from tonight. He is making extensive repairs and is keeping the exact location a secret until the carpenters have finished their work, so that they will not be interfered with.

Incidentally, Kapphan also reveals that he will act as his own matchmaker, at least at the start, and he wants the managers of boxers desirous of appearing on his cards to communicate with him at Court 2193.

Between Rounds

Tom Rodkin, former local boxing referee and promoter, is visiting in town this week as manager of the show at the Nixon Theater.

Jimmy Delaney resumes work next Monday and will be ready for action again soon. Motor Square Garden wants to rematch him with Ted Yarosz, while Yarosz insists on having an out-of-town boxer of prominence brought here for him, since he holds two wins over Jimmy.

Moe Rubin and Jimmy Thomas finish their hard training tomorrow for their 10-round bout in Motor Square Garden Monday night, replacing the Dutch-Al Brown battle, rescheduled last Monday night.

Marty Gold has been signed to box Tony Marino in the main bout of next Thursday night's show in McKeesport.

Wire Davies knows Bobby Latham at Toronto, January 25.

Leonard Sachs, manager of Jack Pompey, is due in town next Tuesday for a conference looking toward showing the former heavyweight champion here in an exhibition bout at either Duquesne Garden or Motor Square on Friday, February 19.

American League Not to Cut Prices

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Depression or no depression, your ticket to American League Baseball games will cost just as much next season as last.

William Harridge, president of the American League, today said there would be no cut in prices. He said that the owners do not feel called upon to lower the admission prices, since they didn't raise it during boom times.

SID TERRIS LOSES SUIT

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Sid Terris, New York lightweight boxer, today lost his court fight to regain $100,000 from his mother, Mrs. Gussie Terris. Supreme Court Justice Charles J. Dodd handed down an opinion holding Terris had given the money to his mother as a gift to care for her in her old age and not, as the fighter contended, merely for safekeeping.

To Win or Lose Isn't Everything

After all, whether you win or lose, whether your share is victory or defeat, life goes on. People live and love, or hate, hope, pray and even die, whether your share is a laurel wreath or sackcloth and ashes.

After the Pitt-Duquesne game the other night, which brought to the Dukes their thrilling victory and to Dr. Carlson and his boys a disappointing defeat, Dr. Carlson congratulated his victorious opponents, patted his boys on their backs, listened to well-meant bits of consolation from admirers and an occasional rub-it-in from gleeful Duquesne supporters and went home.

The Doctor likes to win as well as any of us. He felt dejected, and when he got to bed, sleep was evasive and he lay there, tossing and turning, replaying the game, seeing over again this mistake and that one and this break and that break.

The 'phone rang, and a neighbor's voice pleaded for Doc's immediate presence.

"Don't stop to dress, Doctor," came the plea, "This is serious."

By the time the physician reached the stricken man's side, life had departed.

Carlson told me this, and then, in his characteristic fashion, concluded:

"What is the mere winning or losing of a basketball game compared to the death of a friend? Is is things like that that cause one to think. Hale and hearty at dinner time; eight hours later just a memory. And we worry about a few field goals or a few victories."—JESS CARVER.

Fred Morrison, Culver City, Cal., who led the first round with a 69, was two over par yesterday, with a 74, and his 143 total gave him no better than a tie for fourth place.

Gene Sarazen made even par to fall into third place, two strokes behind Guest.

Precisely 21 teams will square off on the covered courts of the Pittsburgh Golf Club at 1:30 P. M. Saturday as the third annual P. G. C. invitation indoor doubles tennis tournament swings into action slated to last over the week-end. Representatives of nine district groups in addition to those of the home organization, will do battle for honors of the local mid-winter net fixture, which this year will be confined to performers recruited from the county area. Pittsburgh Athletic Association, Stanton Heights Golf Club, Edgewood Club, University Club, Edgeworth Club, Allegheny Country Club, Fox Chapel Golf Club, Longue Vue Country Club, the University of Pittsburgh, and the Pittsburgh Golf Club boast delegates to the milling.

Semi-final contesting is booked for late Sunday morning, with the finale on the Sabbath afternoon card. Assisting Chairman Burgwin on the committee in charge are G. G. Coolidge, Joseph Dilworth and L. M. Johnston. Warren Krueger, crack Golf Club "pro," will also, of course, be on deck to lend aid in keeping the extensive program in smooth operation.

M'HALE KAYOED IN FOURTH BY BILLY HOLT

Billy Holt, local Negro welterweight, was awarded a technical knockout victory over Marty McHale, of McKeesport, in the fourth stanza of the scheduled 10-round main bout at the Palisades, McKeesport, last night, when the Tube City boxer's handlers tossed a towel into the ring following two knockdowns for counts of nine, and a third in which Marty appeared greatly distressed.

Holt held only a slight edge over McHale in the first three rounds of milling, but he decisively asserted himself in the fourth when he "shot the works" in an effort to score a knockout. Two minutes of the fourth round had elapsed when McHale's handlers conceded the honors. Holt tipped the scales at 146 and McHale at 145.

Jimmy Moore, another local Negro fighter, lost a one-sided bout to Billy Flannagan, of Clearfield, Pa., who was accorded a unanimous decision in the 10-round semi-final. Moore was on the canvas for short counts twice in the second round. Moore scaled 156½; Flannagan, 159.

Another technical knockout was registered by Joey Bazzone, 142¼, of McKeesport, when Mickey DePalmo's badly cut mouth caused Referee Red Robinson to halt proceedings in the tenth and final round. The Canton boy weighed 146¼, and Bazzone 142¼.

Johnny Montebano, of Braddock, won a split decision from Jimmy Louzes, of McKeesport, in the six-round opener. Montebano tipped the beam at 132 and his opponent at 131¾.

Robinson refereed all of the bouts; the judges were Freddie Lux and Jock Simco, and the timer was Max Zeugschmidt.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Turn Up

Local Market Narrow

STOCKS RESIST PRESSURE AND RISE AGAIN

Early Declines of 1 to 3 Partly Regained Later; Trading in Shares Dull

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The stock market resisted pressure of profit taking during the early trading today and turned upward again after mid-day.

Considerable selling came into the rails during the morning, reflecting uneasiness in some brokerage circles over the delays in the wage negotiations at Chicago, but the early losses of 1 to 3 points were partly regained in the afternoon recovery. Trading was dull.

New York Central failed to follow the decline and registered a 1-point advance when the market turned upward. Shorts were pressed a little in Auburn and Case, which came up about 2 points. United States Steel and American Telephone recovered after sagging a point or two. Union Pacific sold off 3 points at one time and issues getting down 1 to 2 included Santa Fe, Chesapeake and Ohio, Southern Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, American Can, American Tobacco B, Allied Chemical, du Pont and others.

Railroad banking quarters remained confident of successful conclusion of the negotiations for a 10 per cent railway wage reduction, despite rumors of disagreement among the railroads and a hitch in the proceedings.

Agreement of a large group of economists as disclosed by Dr. Warren M. Persons in an interview with the Associated Press, that the United States may move forward toward business recovery without waiting for Europe, by such simple expedients as passing the reconstruction finance measure and embarking upon a credit expansion program while protecting the gold base, was described in banking quarters as encouraging, for the measures suggested are already under way. Approval of the reconstruction finance measure is regarded in Wall street as assured, and the Federal Reserve is reported to be embarking upon a program of encouraging credit expansion.

Gloomy talk of inflation in America in some of the capital centers of Europe is described as absurd in Wall street. The Federal Reserve, it was explained, could put out several billions in credit through normal channels without impairing its gold reserve ratio to a point that could be regarded as serious. Money rates continued to sag today, with dealers making another cut of ½ of 1 per cent in bankers acceptance rates.

WHEAT PRICES TAKE DIP

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—Unexpectedly big wheat shipments from southern hemisphere sources gave an early downward trend to grain prices today. The week's total of wheat exports by Argentina and Australia was 9,274,000 bushels. Opening at a shade of ⅛ cent lower, wheat afterward sagged further. Corn started unchanged to ¼ cent off, and subsequently held near the initial limits.

Sub-zero temperatures spreading into domestic winter wheat territory acted as a curb on wheat price setbacks. Rallies, however, were not impressive. European demand for United States wheat was reported as of insufficient volume to support values.

Central to Place $7,500,000 Rail Business

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The New York Central is reported to be preparing final estimates on its steel rail requirements for 1932. It was said the road will shortly place orders for 175,000 tons, involving about $7,500,000. According to the report the order will be distributed among Carnegie Steel and Illinois Steel subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation and the Bethlehem and Inland Steel companies.

Outside Interest in Rail Stocks Has Increased This Week

Increased public participation is being reported in the railroad shares. This is due mainly to the tendency of many commission houses to favor these stocks because of probable developments in the near future which will be favorable. While the short interest in the rails has been smaller than in the industrials, there has been considerable covering at times. Many outsiders express the intention to hold rails for the long-pull.

It has been many years since financial and stock market interests have shown as much interest in the automobile show as at present. Many have visited the display and examined the various models closely with the idea of attempting to select the companies which are most likely to attract the public with their products. Favorable reports regarding attendance and sales have been made, but most observers are inclined to wait six to eight weeks in order to judge the actual demand of the public in all sections of the country.

On the theory that the market has indicated ability to pass through logical resistance levels the conservative observers are strongly advising customers to purchase pivotal shares on a scale during set-backs. While "stop" orders are favored for the protection of accounts, most interests are warning against placing limits too close to buying levels.

At the moment, there is more interest in domestic affairs, particularly with regard to business conditions and the outlook for trade. The probable benefits from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as well as the rail wage settlement, higher freight rates and credit for the carriers are being emphasized as factors which could influence stocks favorably. Many believe interests in this country went too far in ignoring foreign developments up to last May, and in the last half of 1931 the situation was exaggerated as an influence.

Resignation of James A. Farrell as president of the United States Steel Corporation, effective at the annual meeting in April, did not surprise many in the financial district. There had been rumors recently that important internal developments were pending in the organization and that Mr. Farrell would relinquish his position before February 15, 1933, when he would reach the retirement age of 70.

Net of Freeport Texas last year is likely to be about $3.25 a share, compared with $4.28 in the preceding 12 months. Interests in the company are looking for improvement in the future, particularly if the production of manganese from the Cuban properties by a new flotation process proves as successful as many now anticipate.

Underwood-Elliott Sales on Uptrend

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Sales of Underwood-Elliott-Fisher Company increased consistently during the last three months of 1931, billings in December being more than $350,000 over November, or nearly three times the increase in December 1930, billings over its preceding month, Philip D. Wagoner, president, states.

The proportion of export sales increased steadily from the low point in July to December, in which it was approximately the same proportion as that of December 1930. The export business of the supply division was the largest in its history.

Banker Giants Didn't Foresee; Result: Losses

By B. C. FORBES

MANY READERS imagine that the "big men" in the financial world are so smart they always know what's going to happen in the security market and that this wonderful ability enables them to load up with stocks at the bottom, thereby reaping gigantic fortunes.

Mr. Forbes

Indeed not a few letter-writers have vowed that the most powerful "financial interests" have been deliberately depressing the stock market in order to be able to scoop up the choicest issues for next-to-nothing. It just ain't so!

Proof?

First, have you noticed that practically every investment trust, no matter how influential its sponsors, has had to record terrific losses?

Second, note the many, many millions even the best managed of the country's leading banks have had to write off because of losses—writing off means that they had to kiss goodbye to the money.

Third, and in a sense the most convincing proof of all—consider what happened to the first security company, wholly-owned adjunct of the First National Bank of New York, famous as the most profitable banking institution in America, with a dividend record of 100 per cent a year.

The directors of the first security company are such eminent notables as J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont, foremost Morgan partner; Arthur Curtiss James, reputedly the largest owner in America of railway securities, George F. Baker, only son of the dean of American bankers who died last May; Walter S. Gifford, president of the largest corporation in the world, American Telephone & Telegraph; Myron C. Taylor, head of the United States Steel Corporation; Jackson E. Reynolds, capable, conservative president of the First National Bank; Lewis Cass Ledyard, leading lawyer; John R. Morrow, George B. St. George, Samuel A. Welldon.

Well, what has happened to this security company directed by such conspicuous leaders? Let President Reynolds tell the tale:

"When the company's last dividend was declared on March 10, the market value of its assets had exceeded its indebtedness by more than $38,000,000. The market value of those assets is now less than its indebtedness by approximately $6,000,000."

If Messrs. Morgan, Baker, Lamont, Gifford, Taylor, Reynolds, James and others had known what was ahead, do you imagine for a moment they would have incurred this severe shrinkage of $44,000,000 in less than 44 weeks?

No. Even the biggest of our financial magnates didn't foresee the severity of last year's debacle. If it be any consolation to those much lower down the financial scale, who have suffered serious financial misfortunes, they can be assured that the number of millionaires and multi-millionaires who have lost either every dollar or almost every dollar would form a lengthy — and most amazing — list.

SHOPPERS COMPLAIN that many stores are awkwardly short of help. Even though trade is by no means extraordinarily brisk, customers state that it is common rather than uncommon to have to wait to be served. When I did my Christmas shopping I observed the same thing. Also I noted that stocks were extremely restricted.

Isn't it time to start the return towards normalcy? Merchants won't always be able to replenish their stocks at the low prices now ruling.

THE STOCK MARKET lately has enjoyed, if not a boom, a boomlet. Since January 5 the average quotation for a list of 50 representative stocks has advanced more than a dozen points, equal to fully 18 per cent. Both domestic and foreign bonds have also improved. Were this upward trend to continue a little longer, it would prove the best possible tonic for sentiment, for business, for industry and for employment.

N. Y. Reserve Bank Rate Unchanged

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Directors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank have made no announcement regarding the rediscount rate, which is 3½ per cent.

Wall street had been somewhat inclined to look for a reduction, in view of recent cuts in interest rates on bankers' acceptances, and reports in authoritative banking quarters that the Reserve System was initiating a new program of credit expansion. Nevertheless, some quarters suggested that a reduction in the rate might not be made immediately.

Increasing Determination To Relieve Unemployment And Depression Shown

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—A hopeful sign is the increasing determination among business men and others to do something about relieving the business depression and unemployment.

Faith in the laissez faire doctrine of standing by and awaiting fortunate circumstances is diminishing.

Mr. Rukeyser.

As we become civilized in an economic sense, there will be further progress in rationalization—in industrial planning and in economic co-ordination.

Now that most of the mistakes of the earlier boom have been corrected and over-corrected, normal behavior on the part of business men and consumers can contribute greatly to economic recuperation. The raw materials for better business are at hand—a super-abundance of gold, vast natural resources and huge supplies of raw materials, great managerial skill, an intelligent working population, and a deflated price level. What is needed is a program for production, which will motivate the will to go forward by utilizing what we have.

A reader of this column—a business executive in Pennsylvania, who asks that his name be withheld—submits a plan for regimenting business spending to break the deadlock of depression.

SUGGESTS REMEDIES

It includes:

"First—Cause every industry and business of every kind to be systematically organized for a period of wise spending. This period to extend over one month beginning February or March 1.

"Second—Request each line of industry and business to anticipate sales and to purchase at least a six months' supply during this period.

"Third—Request all lines of industry and business to fill all orders received during this period at prices agreed and quoted. Urge them not to give orders received at a later date at a stimulated price priority over ones received during this period.

"Fourth—After the wage earners have received steady employment at good wages over a sufficient length of time, urge them through the medium of newspapers and other publications to engage in a similar period of spending."

In supporting the plan, the executive said:

"The payroll is the financial background of our country. Unemployment is the main cause of the defaulting on both principal and interest on mortgages and financial obligations. Steady employment of the wage earner for a few months will without question change our present condition from one of discontent to one of contentment and prosperity."

Daisy Decides on Hazardous Game to Spoil Plans Of Racket Boss

(Adapted from the original motion picture story of W. R. Burnett. With screen play by John I. Mahin, produced by Cosmopolitan Productions and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.)

CHAPTER VIII.

Mayor Gordon was a politician with a public fixation. He swayed like the supple branches of the weeping willow tree to the breeze of general opinion—especially just before election time, because popular sentiment was visualized by him as so many votes—as long as it could be done without offending the machine—generally spelled MACHINE.

So when the Civic Reform Committee called on him the day after Capt. Fightin' Jim Fitzpatrick had captured the three bank robbers, he gave ear respectfully, and then called in Chief Burton. The chief, whose uniform consisted of a smart blue serge business suit, blue regulation shirt and dark blue tie, spats and soft fedora, came in breezily, beamed on the mayor, and took his seat in the chair which had been drawn up for him.

"What is it, Henry?" he demanded easily. "I suppose you want to confer with me on that new contract I put over for the clean-up week publicity—"

"Now, listen, George," and the Mayor fingered the telephone cord and avoided the other's gaze. "I appreciate that okay—but there's something else I want to talk to you about—"

"By all means," exclaimed Chief Burton, whipping out a handkerchief which filled the room with the delicate odor of lavender toilet water.

"Well, George, what I want to say is this," continued the Mayor. "This job's not in your class—you're too good for it—I have a better one, more befitting your dignity—I—"

"Oh, forget it, Henry," smiled Chief Burton. "I'm running the department just like you want it run—you know that—"

"But I need a man to head the Committee for the Reception of Distinguished Guests," he leaned forward in a confidential manner. "And you, George, are just the man."

BURTON DISSATISFIED

Chief Burton narrowed his eyes and gazed in silence at the Mayor.

"Looks like an ease-out to me," he said eventually.

"Now, don't take it that way, George," urged the Mayor, a hurt expression coming over his face. "I can't help it—you see the newspapers have started in on me—"

"But you don't care about the newspapers, do you? They'll criticize you and me no matter what we do—"

"Yes, but election's coming on," and the Mayor made this statement with appropriate profundity and finality.

Chief Burton tapped his cane nervously on the floor.

"And whom are you going to put in my place?" he asked.

"Well, I think Fitzpatrick's the man for the job—he's the one the newspapers are howling for, and the Civic Reform Committee suggested him."

"Fitzpatrick—huh! Looks like you are planning to make a fool of me," and Chief Burton snorted in disgust. "Very well."

"I knew, George, you'd see my trend of thought," grinned the Mayor enigmatically.

* * * *

Daisy Beaumont was torn between two loves—love of Sergeant Ed Fitzpatrick and love of life. Daisy was sorry she had ever met Ed, for she knew now that her affection for him was dangerous. She knew that Belmonte intended to get even with Fightin' Jim through his brother, and she knew that it was through her that he would twist the screws on Ed. And if she didn't play the game the way Belmonte wanted her to play it, her own life was on a hair. But Daisy was a resourceful girl. She was sure she would wriggle a way out of it all, and that she and Ed could have each other.

On the night of her birthday she had made up her mind. She would work things out in her own way—for her own good and for the good of Ed. But she would not take him into her confidence. She would play a hazardous game, play it with a lone hand, play the cards with queens up on jacks.

Ed came to her place at exactly 8 o'clock. He had a big package and a little package. The big one contained six bottles of champagne and the little one of perfume. Daisy put the champagne on ice and the perfume on the table. When Ed tried to kiss her she pushed him away and standing, hands on hips, taunted him.

"I hope you didn't go broke, dearest—spending all that money on perfume."

TAUNTS HIM

Ed looked at her a moment in astonishment.

"What did you want—a sable coat?" he demanded. "And is that a nice way to talk? I didn't think between you and me the value in dollars and cents would count so much—"

"Oh, it isn't that," shrugged Daisy. "But I do think you could have spread yourself a little—what's the matter—broke?"

"Now, listen, Daisy," snorted Ed. "Don't try to take me for a ride. Anyway, that perfume ain't so cheap—"

"Well, I might have had a real birthday present if I wanted to be so-so to certain fellows—don't forget that."

"Aw—you're just clownin'—tryin' to steam me up, eh?" He walked toward her and tried to put his arm around her waist. "Come on, give Ed a little kiss," he said.

"Nothin' doin'!" exclaimed Daisy. "I ain't sore—get me straight. But anyway, I think you could have promoted a necklace, or a ring—or somethin' that I could remember you by—perfume don't last so long, you know—"

"Aw, what the h—l, Daisy," cried Ed. "You know I don't make so much dough—what's the idea?"

"Well, you could if you wanted to—there's lots of ways."

"Now—come on, let's you and me have a drink. I got that champagne right off the boat—"

"Handout, I suppose."

"Yes—if you want to know—it was given to me. What about it?"

"Oh, nothin'—but I know men who spend real dough on champagne."

"Say! What are you beefin' about? Here I am tryin' to be nice to you—and you're ridin' me. If you don't like the perfume, chuck it out the window. If you don't like the wine, spill it down the sink. I don't get you at all."

Daisy's attitude changed at once. She walked up to Ed and put her face close to his.

"Don't be sore, Big Babe," she cooed. "I don't want to see you sore. Is it my fault that I like nice things? I'd like to see you makin' plenty o' coin—there's plenty o' cops who are. I simply don't see why you don't."

"Forget it. I'll make the money. They're goin' to make my brother chief and he'll get me a promotion. Come on now, be a sweet kid and crack one of those bottles. I'm dry as a smoked herring."

"Well," conceded Daisy, taking one of the bottles out of the ice box, "you can at least take me out later. We can have something to eat and dance a few."

"Okay—where do you want to go?"

"I think Celli's is a swell joint—they have hot music."

"Belmonte's—eh? What is this—a set-up?"

"You know me better than that—afraid?"

"Afraid? Afraid of what? I got nothin' to be afraid of. What's the matter with you?"

"Oh, nothin'," and Daisy shrugged. "Come on—show me what you do with this champagne bottle—I don't know how to open it."

"Well, it's still a little warm, but here goes," and he twisted the wire from the top, and, covering the cork with a napkin, shook the bottle. There was a pop and the amber-colored liquor foamed out. Ed filled two glasses, and the little bubbles struggled upward through the liquid.

Before Daisy took her drink she threw her arms around Ed's neck, and pressing close to him kissed him. He held her face between his hands and looked into her eyes.

"You do love me, don't you, Daisy?" he asked.

"I'm just mad about you, Big Babe," whispered Daisy, twisting a finger-tip in his ear.

"And I'm cookoo over you, kid," breathed Ed. Daisy was on the defensive again.

"But remember—we're goin' out and dance—don't get too drunk," she warned.

At 12 o'clock that night they left the apartment. The six bottles were empty. Ed was a bit tight, and by that time he was promising:

"Don't worry, kid—stick by and you'll be wearin' diamonds. My brother'll take care of me. He'll fix me up right. I'll be a captain in no time."

"But there are plenty of ways a cop can make money," she insisted. "Captain or no captain."

"Oh—yeah? Well I know 'em all, kid—all the old ones an' a couple o' new ones!"

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

Unsung New Yorkers

THE STORY of Eddie is a trifle different from the ordinary racket yarn. It's been some three or four years since the boys have seen him around Broadway, and he has been more or less forgotten. Did you think that that happens only on the stage or in the newspaper world? Not so. The same thing goes in every line. Stay away long enough and they forget you ever lived.

When I tell you that Eddie was smart enough to understand that, you will know immediately that he was not quite the ordinary mobster. He had a very definite brain, even though most of the boys who once worked for him don't think so today. Their reason for not thinking so is very simple. Eddie was nabbed and sent to jail for two years. If he was a smart guy, they argue, how could that happen? Well, let's see.

When the Government first whispered that prohibition had gone into effect, Eddie didn't mean very much in the underworld. He was on the fringe of a fairly important mob and, because of his education, he was valuable when they were engineering a deal that called for a little class. But he was a quiet sort of bird. And they all figured him for something of a chump.

After a few months of prohibition, Eddie went to the leader of his particular underworld organization.

"Butch," he began, "I know that some of the boys around here have me pegged as something of a chump. I don't mind that. As a matter of fact, when I look at some of them, I'm glad they figure me in a different class from them. But that's not the point."

He was silent for a moment. Then he spoke impressively.

"Millions are going to be made out of this prohibition racket, Butch," he went on. "Millions. The thing's in its first stages today, and any dope who has whisky on his hands is out trying to sell it.

"Don't you see, Butch, that this liquor thing is going to become one of the greatest rackets the world has ever known? Can't you see that far in the future? It's going to be a terrific business. It's going to take smart guys to handle politicians and coppers. But it's going to be a business when hundreds will out and thousands will pour in. Do you follow me?"

Butch nodded sleepily.

"Yeah," he said. "What do you want me to do?"

"I want you to let me organize this thing for you," he replied. "I want to use your name and your power. I want to start a liquor combination that will get the jump on the others that are sure to come. I want you to back me in my idea."

"You will make a fortune, Butch. What do you say?"

Butch yawned.

"I'll tell yuh, Eddie," he replied tiredly, "you're a nice kid an' I like yuh. But you're gettin' all hopped up over nothin'. I'm doin' all right just where I am now—an' I ain't gonna fool around wit' no racket what don't sound sensible. So long, kid."

So Eddie went out and began to organize his own mob. . . .

He did an excellent job of it. Using every argument at his command, he persuaded some of the town's noblest muscle men to string with him. He had one distinct advantage that none of the other racketeers enjoyed. He had an education.

A few years later Eddie was riding high, wide and handsome.

Suddenly, something happened. One of his best men was filled with lead and tossed from a car on a lonely road. A few days later, two more of his men went the same way. Within a very short time, every man in the mob was "on the edge"—and none of them knew for a certainty when they went for a walk that it wouldn't turn into a ride.

To the members of the gang this merely meant a bullet-proof vest and a lot of fun in a short time. But to Eddie, the shrewd one, it meant something totally different. It meant that, while he could buy politicians and government workers by the carload, he couldn't buy the members of the competing mobs. He didn't want death; he wanted to live to enjoy his money. And he began to plan far, far ahead.

We skip 10 years now, and we find Eddie pretty much the same as he was when we last left him. With this change: He was no longer the leader of one of the biggest mobs. He was content to go along in his smaller fashion and let the others fight it out among themselves. He now had the millions he had talked about to Butch in the dim past.

But he also had the same desire to get away from the racket as he had had ever since his first gangster was put on the spot.

But how? How was he to get away? There he was. Money galore in the safety deposit boxes—but not out from the racket. What to do?

One bright morning Eddie pounced upon a brilliant idea. It was a positive out, and he would still be on the up and up with his mob. If his politicians could work one way, surely they would turn in the opposite direction. It has been done, you know.

A week later, Eddie was picked up by an officer of the law. He had been picked up some 50 times before, but this was something different. He was convicted of the crime with which he was charged and was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. If I'm not mistaken, several papers congratulated the police commissioner of the day on his brilliant achievement. That must have handed Eddie a laugh.

In a year Eddie was pretty much forgotten. A new leader was on the job two days after Eddie had been sent away. When he was finally released the shrewd one went to his "plant" and uncached his bankroll. And today, under a different name in another city, Eddie is living the life he had always wanted to live.

Not bad . . .

* * *

I asked about Eddie the other day. I asked one of the tougher members of a big mob if he remembered the name.

"Oh, sure," was the reply I received. "Don't know what became of him, though. After he was sprung, he disappeared. Oh, well, he shouldn't have been caught in the first place. He always was pretty dumb." . . .

"Roebling Boulevard"

If the Saxonburg Road Is to Be Renamed, the Famous Bridge Builder Should Be Honored.

Chairman Charles C. McGovern, of the Board of County Commissioners, proposes to change the name of the Saxonburg road now known as KDKA boulevard. He desires "some human name."

What could be more appropriate than to call it "Roebling Boulevard," in honor of John Augustus Roebling, the famous engineer, whose home was at Saxonburg?

Pittsburgh has given many distinguished men to the world, but none more brilliant in his own field than Roebling. You will find an article about him in every first-class encyclopedia.

He established a wire rope factory here about 100 years ago. Then he took to building bridges of wire rope—suspension bridges. He replaced the wooden aqueduct of the Pennsylvania Canal across the Allegheny River with a suspension aqueduct and constructed a suspension bridge across the Monongahela.

Roebling is better known, however, as the builder of the Brooklyn Bridge, the first span over the East River, and of the great suspension bridge over the Niagara River.

His son, Washington A. Roebling, was born at Saxonburg and worked under his father on some of the local bridges. He had a brilliant record as a soldier in the Union Army in the Civil War, and after the war carried on the work of his father. He completed the Brooklyn Bridge and built others.

It has been the custom in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County for a number of years to name public works, such as boulevards, tunnels, schools, parks and playgrounds, for living politicians. Why not depart from the custom to the extent at least of paying a compliment to the Roeblings? In advertising their connection with Allegheny County we would be honoring ourselves.

An Appalling Plight

Impeachment Proceedings Should Be Started Against Those Guilty for Outrageous Conditions in Honolulu.

Congress will shirk a stern and solemn duty if it flinches from that fearless and immediate resort to drastic action which the appalling condition of affairs in Honolulu imperatively demands.

Failure of the so-called government of Hawaii to avenge the criminal assaults suffered last September by an innocent American woman jeopardizes the honor of every American woman in Hawaii and challenges the honor of American manhood wherever the flag flies.

Failure of the administration at Washington to remove the governor of Hawaii from office and replace him with a governor fit to govern, proves that the executive branch of the federal government cannot be trusted either to punish the guilty or protect the innocent, or to do anything truly representative of American spirit or worthy of public respect.

Under the law, the governor of Hawaii is charged with full responsibility "for the faithful execution of the laws."

Under the law, the governor of Hawaii is authorized "whenever it becomes necessary" to call for assistance "upon the commanders of the military and naval forces of the United States in the territory of Hawaii, or summon the posse comitatus, or call out the militia of the territory to prevent or suppress lawless violence."

Under the law, the governor of Hawaii is authorized "when the public safety requires it" to suspend the privilege of writ of habeas corpus, or place the territory or any part thereof under martial law until communication can be had with the President and his decision thereon made known.

And when the governor of Hawaii fails to prevent or suppress lawless violence, and fails to call for the assistance which the public safety requires, the President of the United States is authorized to remove him from office.

Gov. Judd has failed for months to prevent the outrages upon innocent American women, to punish those guilty of such outrages, or to take such measures as the public safety requires to protect other American women from meeting the same horrible fate.

President Hoover has failed for months to remove Gov. Judd from office.

And now that the high command of the Navy has exposed to Congress and the country the appalling conditions that have long existed in Honolulu and its inability to induce Gov. Judd to perform his duties under the law, President Hoover's Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Halfaman Wilbur, has the effrontery to defend Gov. Judd's inaction and to offer the smug assurance that "the civil authorities in Hawaii have the situation well in hand."

Upon the face of the record now before Congress, the House of Representatives should resort immediately to impeachment proceedings against the public officials responsible for such outrageous conditions and for such hopeless and shameless misrepresentation of American manhood and womanhood.

Perhaps Gov. Judd should be impeached.

Perhaps Secretary Wilbur should be impeached.

Or, perhaps after all Representative McFadden was right.

In the face of such humiliating conditions and in the presence of such hopeless and shameless misrepresentatives of American manhood and womanhood someone should be impeached.

Misplaced Trust

The Tragedy at Rockview Prison Is a Warning Against Considering Morons Harmless.

The fiendish killing of a young woman, the daughter of the prison physician, by a convict in the Rockview Penitentiary was the result of misplaced confidence.

The prisoner was serving a term for murder and had been a psychopathic case for years. "Although known to be a moron," we are told, "he was considered harmless." And so he became a "trusty" and was allowed the run of the place, and obtained a butcher knife and killed the girl.

A psychopathic case, a moron, and serving a term for murder, yet regarded by the prison authorities as harmless!

The only explanation can be that familiarity bred contempt.

There is a warning in the case not under any circumstances to regard morons convicted of crimes of violence as harmless.

The Dachs Calls It a Day -:- By Nelson Harding

The dachshund harnessed to the load
Now flops right down upon the road.
It's evident it means to show
That here's as far as it will go.

And at that milestone on the way
Is where the dachs call it a day.
No doubt those traces chafe and gall,
But did the dachs lie down or fall?

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Well-Dressed Neck

Sometimes, a business firm can be almost as solicitous as a mother, and as arbitrary as a wife.

* * *

Take a certain famous New York bank, for instance, which rules that all the men in its employ must wear high, stiff, white linen collars.

* * *

THAT'S good psychology! Whoever made that rule knows his Emerson, "Style is the man"—particularly the style of his neckwear. Whether you are going after business, going after a job, or going after a woman, there's no better card of introduction than a nifty, becoming collar. One high enough to hide your Adam's apple.

A woman may love a man for his weaknesses, for his sins, even for his masterful brutality—but she has to love him in SPITE of his neck! No woman who has once seen a man's Adam's apple can ever again feel quite the same romance for him. She can only close her eyes and try to remember how GOOD he is to her.

* * *

A woman's neck curves gradually and gracefully down from her chin to her shoulders; but, somehow, a man's neck always looks as though it had been just pasted on as an afterthought. Like the fancy label on prohibition gin bottles.

* * *

Moralists may inveigh against the evils and temptations of the low-cut feminine bathing suit. But not even a fundamentalist could find anything dangerous or "tempting about a man with a coquettishly displayed Adam's apple.

If the stiff, high linen collar ever gets completely out of fashion, there will have to be an amendment to the Constitution making love and marriage compulsory. Those low, narrow, soft collars, which almost became the vogue a few years ago, very nearly succeeded in putting love "on the spot."

* * *

But the astute, snappy business man never fell for them. He knew that there is nothing which gives a man such an "efficient," prosperous appearance as a well-dressed neck—and he stuck TO it!

* * *

Eve may have started all the trouble in the world; but if Adam hadn't been in such a rush to HELP her, the apple might never have stuck in his throat. And man would never have been condemned to the discomfort of a high, starched linen collar. That's ONE thing that men can't blame on woman!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—Thoughts while strolling: Who remembers when "What's the diff?" was a snappy come-back? That snow white streak, cocka-too-like, in the coiffure of the former Peggy Fears. Lily Pons and Betsy Drake look alike. And Dr. Leo Michel is a thin edition of Lew Fields.

George Olsen, a Portland, Ore., boy, who made good in the city. Plays with cuss words for the New York trade and deleted for the provinces. Mayor Walker and J. Wade McGrath have the neatest signatures in town. Muriel Kirkland, the Yonkers actress, with a rich Southern accent.

Two of my favorite people—Gene Buck and Ward Morehouse. I never remember whether Sinclair Lewis' home town, Sauk Center, is in Minnesota or Wisconsin. Or if Wilson Mizner pronounces his last name Mize-ner or Mizz-ner. One word description of Harrison Fisher—grayish.

Sudden darkness. A flash of lightning dizzying across the sky. A clap of thunder and I'll bet the Sealyham is making a bee line for under the bed, the fraidy. Antoine, the Paris hair dresser, certainly gets a mess of publicity. Who wouldn't—wearing sandals and glass heels!

Something pleasant about glowering restaurants, wistful souvenirs of long ago, with heavy footed Dutch waiters. And no music. Twenty years back euchre was raging. And casino was a sissy game. Wonder how many banquets the Times' Mr. Wiley attends in a year. The talented Irving Caesar suggests a tree owl.

Odd how a single play clings to an actress—Leonore Ulric as Kiki and Maud Adams as Peter Pan. Astonishingly pretty lasses wear Salvation Army costumes these days. Mark Connelley used to be thin as a rail. Now looky! Ann Pennington looks Japanese in street clothes.

That zig-zag zone of hotels along Central Park South. Hector Fuller: Official announcer of distinguished guests. But no one yet touches Grover Whalen. When he greets them they stay greeted. Another "good guy"—Vehicle License Commissioner Harnett. Whatever became of Belle Storey?

* * *

True tale of a theatrical bankruptcy. A producer hurried from Europe to put up $80,000 to prevent a Chicago mortgage foreclosure. He had tucked away $750,000 in gilt-edge securities in a deposit box—jointly held by his brother, his wife and self. Going to the vault from the pier he found the box empty. He actually fainted. His brother could not fathom the dilemma and sent for his wife, who came whitefaced and repentant. Caught in the furore of margin gambling she had drained the box in desperate effort to recoup.

* * *

* * *

Daddy Browning carries on. He is frequently at big balls around town, being an especially expert dancer. His newest raiment is blue full suit, with buttons as large as dollars, filagreed in black and white, and his lapel is graced with a diminutive orchid. And when twirling with the ladies he seems as happy as a two-tailed Missouri cow in fly time.

* * *

A civilizing influence has touched movie monikers. No longer is the public asked to believe in such incredible names as Arlene Pretty, Louise Lovely and June Caprice. But nothing can be done apparently about naming radio crooners Ozzie, Rudy, Russ, Bing and Scrappy.

* * *

A minor depression racket is exploited by a lesser genius who carries in his pocket an envelope containing a large and deceased cockroach. After dining sumptuously in various restaurants, he leaves a few tidbits under which to slip the insect. Then he calls the head waiter, points out the offense in high dudgeon. At length he agrees to leave without spreading tales. And, of course, the management could not think of a charge.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

The Duncan sisters are broke. A couple of years ago they had millions scattered all over the place. Now they're busted flat.

"And it's all because we signed on the dotted line!" they cry. "People came to us. They said, 'Girls, this is a great little proposition: this will make you money so fast that your head will swim, and you won't have to give it a second thought. Just sign here, and then go off and forget it.'"

Thus sigh Vivien and Rosetta; and now they're pulling on their overalls and going to work again.

Well, they're not alone. Plenty of us are munching dog-biscuits today because we "signed on the dotted line" between bites of caviare.

And that isn't the only way we get ourselves busted, either! Some of us squander all our happiness, our peace, our liberty and self-respect because it is so easy to "sign on the dotted line!"

We want to be good fellows. We like to be obliging. We hate to say "no," and some one is always hanging around wanting us to say "yes."

Before we're fairly out of the kindergarten it starts. People wanting us to think the way they do. People wanting us to live the way they live. People wanting to use us in countless different ways—coaxing, arguing, flattering, pleading, threatening, urging, scolding, whining, pulling sob stories, flying into tantrums to make us do what they want us to do.

And always they're as full of bright promises as a bond salesman. If we listen to them they'll make our fortune for us. We'll always be happy if we do as they say—always safe and content.

So we "sign on the dotted line." Sign away our right to be ourselves and live our own lives and think our own thoughts. Sign as blithely, with as little thought of the morrow, as Vivien and Rosetta signed.

FOR ALWAYS WE ARE SO SURE THAT WE CAN TAKE CARE OF OURSELVES!

Yes, maybe folks are taking advantage of us, imposing on us. But we'll take care of all that. Give us time and we'll work things out. And, for the present, it won't do any harm to let them think they're having their own way.

And then, some day, we wake to realize that youth has gone and opportunity has passed and the years are coming to an end.

AND WHAT HAS BECOME OF LIFE? What has happened to all our fine ambition, to our dreams, our flaming resolves? They're gone! We let someone take them all away! We squandered them because we couldn't say "NO!"—and "signed on the dotted line."

Don't you do it! Make yourself unpopular if you must, but don't "yes" your life away. Be generous. Be helpful. But protect your own fundamental right to BE YOURSELF. For, if you don't, nobody else will.

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Isn't It So?

"Won't" and "can't" are brother and sister.

The bridge between joy and sorrow is not long.

A lot of the charity that begins at home is too weak to venture outside.

When a woman cleans house her husband gets to his work downtown on time.

Some people are so dumb that they are unable to distinguish between a cheer and a jeer.

No life is without some comfort, if nothing more than that of rubbing the place that itches.

In this day of long skirts and changeable waistlines about the only way you can tell where a girl bends is to watch her when she sits down.

Why Not An 'American Way' for Americans?

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

We are beginning to get more light on the "American way," where the supreme problem of the nation is to prevent starvation and the deprivation of childhood of the food necessary for health. The City of New York is to be forced, in getting a loan from the bankers who floated the Peruvian and German securities, to reduce its expenditures to minimize the human misery.

Thus the record stands:

Of the most vital of national problems, involving the lives of women and children, the national government is to be permitted to wash its hands. "Billions for Europe, but not one cent for starving Americans"—for that is "the American way."

The duty of preventing suffering and starvation must be assumed by the local governmental units, and when these reach the end of their resources, as so many have, or are compelled by the bankers to shut down on local relief, the national government will do nothing.

Since private charity is not a drop in the bucket, starvation will not be prevented by individual contributions. In September, in the case of 81 of our largest cities, 77 per cent of all relief has come from the local treasury. Had these 81 cities done nothing, but 23 per cent of the relief given would have been granted. Most, or at least many, of these cities can do no more, or must reduce on their expenditures for relief.

Out of this comes one fact—that people out of jobs because of no fault of their own, and their women and children, must suffer and starve.

For this is "The American way."

* * *

Float a National Prosperity Loan

It is also demanded by some of the bankers that cities furnishing jobs by needed permanent public improvements must shut down on these. This can mean but one thing—the increase of the army of the unemployed. And this means an accession to the ranks of the hungry. And it also means a reduction in the purchasing power of the people when the whole problem of the return of prosperity depends on the restoration of purchasing power.

There is just one way out of this, and that is the floating of a national prosperity loan to put millions to work on wages to be spent with merchants.

But the administration is against this plan—or any plan that goes directly to the relief of millions of breadwinners who have been denied the right to work. And this, we believe, too, is "the American plan."

The Loan Was Floated And Is in Default

But the "American plan," as understood by the administration, has many ramifications. We have just heard of the "American plan" for the disposal of foreign securities among American investors—and it is a bit startling.

It appears that in the case of the Peruvian loan, the bankers with the positive aid of the government, "rigged the market," and that $100,000,000 in securities were sold to the people.

It seems that the loan was to mean so much to the bankers that they paid a commission to the son of the late unlamented Peruvian President of more than $400,000.

Then, it seems, that when the commercial attache at Lima informed the Department of Commerce that it was unwise to make the loan, and the State Department knew about it, too, he was rebuked for not sending in an "optimistic report." At that time President Hoover was at the head of the Department of Commerce.

The agent of the bankers that floated the loan warned them that Peru would probably default within five years, and the purchasers of the bonds would be lucky to collect 10 cents on the dollar.

But with the encouragement of the administration, resenting a warning to the purchasing public, the loan was floated—and is in default.

In England that process is called fraudulent; but that is not the "American way."

And Who Are The Voters!

Meanwhile, with Congress on record against transferring the debts of 14 nations to the backs of American taxpayers, the advocates of the transfer are growing contemptuous of "the politicians and the voters" in this country. We may dismiss the politicians—who, by the way, could not possibly make a worse mess of things than the bankers—since they seek to conform to the will of these contemptible "voters."

And who are the "voters?" They are the American people.

They are the American people who are to be asked to take over the debts of France, for example, and pay them out of their own pockets.

They are the Americans who are asked to sumbit to increased taxation to the tune of billions so that Frenchmen and Belgians and others may not have to submit to taxation to pay their debts.

But the representatives of the bankers, writing and speaking, have nothing but disdain for all of us who cannot understand why it is contemptible in us, after having scaled down the foreign debts by billions, to object to paying all the debt due our people by the 14 nations.

It is easy to understand the fury of the spokesman of the international bankers: if the debtor nations can pass their financial obligations on to the American people, it will be easier for the bankers to collect on their bad foreign loans.

The 'Liquidation Of the War'

We hear constantly that the way to prosperity and peace is to wipe out the war obligations everywhere and start all over again. Germany will refuse to pay reparations; the other European nations will refuse to pay the debts they owe the United States; but will the United States then refuse to pay the billions it borrowed to loan to the nations that are to be released? Not at all. A real wiping out of the war obligations means that the United States bonds sold to the people to get money to make the loans to Europe, must go too.

Absurd?

Not so absurd. Not long ago, in Italy, the government invited the holders of certain bonds to make a sacrifice by surrendering their bonds for a street bonfire, and they responded. It might be tried here. We have a very few of these bonds and agree to give them to the fire. Where are the others? Will their owners make this patriotic sacrifice to put the world on its feet again?

They will not. They will not, because the major part of these bonds are in possession of the institutions that are asking the transfer of the European debts to all the American people so they can collect on their private loans. Thus it all comes to this: We may end reparations, with which we have nothing to do, and forgive the debts, and then pay all the debts ourselves—and call it the "liquidation of the war."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Among your friends there are those whom you realize to be slipping physically.

Whatever you do, don't mention the fact to them.

Don't let your manner indicate sympathy.

It may be a shock to you to see a friend of many years whose cheeks are sunken, whose color indicates disease, whose step falters.

Nevertheless, if you are well, it is your obvious duty to do what you can to bolster the courage and strengthen the morale of your friend.

Even though you cannot help comparing the present conditions with the former vigor, don't by word or action let your thoughts be suspected.

You are bound to be in the same boat some time.

Wouldn't it be encouraging to see your friends act natura ?

Wouldn't it be better for them to talk about what interests them outside of the sick room rather than talk about your "condition?"

Bring up some of the happy things that you have experienced together.

"Seeing you reminds me of" is a good start if you remember something jolly or interesting to you both.

Don't depress an invalid with a long face and spiritless manner.
